FREEDOM LOOMING FOR INDIA

King to Run All U. S. Naval Operations

TRIPLE THREAT SPECIALIST IN FULL CHARGE

Ohio-Born Admiral To Direct Planning as Well as Combat Activity.

SUCCEEDS STARK

Former Operations Chief Put In Control of European Sea Forces By Knox.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The supreme command of all United States naval operations was concentrated today in the hands of Admiral Ernest J. King, a triple threat specialist in surface, air and submarine warfare.

King, who was already commander-in-chief of the U. S fleet, took over the duties heretofore entrusted to Admiral Harold R. Stark as chief of naval operations. King is a native of Lorain, O.

This consolidation of authority—a possible hint of further streamlining in the navy's organization—gave King control not only of combat activities but also of the general planning and fleet maintenance, formerly the province of the chief of naval operations.

Secretary of Navy Knox announced the change in a formal statement last night which disclosed the assignment of Admiral Stark to a newly created post of "commander, U. S. naval forces operating in European waters."

The navy changes followed closely the army's reorganization of its general staff into a smaller, younger group, but it remained to be seen whether the two moves would quiet congressional agitation for a greater unification in the direction of the nation's war effort.

The army reorganization, which became effective yesterday, reduced the general staff to a fifth of its former size and gave greater recognition to air force men. Excepting the chief of staff, General George C. Marshall, who is 61, the streamlined staff has an average age of 48.

However, congress was urged by Sen. LaFollette (Prog., Wis.) to order an investigation to determine whether legislation was

FREEZES PORK

Government Fixes Wholesale Prices on Products.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The government temporarily froze wholesale prices of 90 per cent of the nation's pork products, including ham and bacon, today at the highest levels prevailing between March 3 and March 7.

The ceiling, effective March 23, applies to dressed hogs and wholesale pork cuts, and Price Administrator Leon Henderson declared it was expected to "help importantly in holding down the cost of living."

Last year, consumers spent more than $2,000,000,000 for pork and other hog products. Neither farmers nor retail outlets are covered directly by the emergency price schedule but Henderson asserted both would feel its effects.

Gets New Duties

CONGRESS QUIET AFTER WARNING

Lull Follows Presidential Word That Rising Prices Threaten Inflation.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A presidential warning of the dangers of continued general price increases coincided today with a lull in the congressional battle over parity price demands for most government-owned farm surpluses.

The house, unable yesterday to dispose of the fight over government-owned farm surplus selling prices, took up other less controversial legislation today after President Roosevelt in a radio speech last night warned industry, labor and agriculture of the dangers both to the nation's economy and the war effort of continued increases in all prices.

The president spoke on the ninth anniversary of the New Deal farm program and observed that thus far price increases to the three economic groups have "been kept fairly well in balance." He also said there had been only "a moderate" rise in the cost of living.

"But," he said, "if all prices keep on going up, we shall have inflation of a very dangerous kind—we shall have such a steep rise in prices and the cost of living that the entire nation will be hurt.

"That would greatly increase

Real Estate Tax Collections Hit Top Daily Total

Richland county taxpayers kept the county treasurer's office on its toes yesterday handling the largest collection of real estate taxes that have been turned in on any single day since the tax books opened Feb. 1.

Yesterday's collection amounted to $27,268, County Treasurer Charles Payne said. This swelled the total tax collection so far to $345,186.

Although the daily tax collections have averaged about $10,000 since the books opened Payne said he predicts a definite increase in this figure from now on as only nine more days are left until the payment deadline March 20.

About 1,200 personal tax returns have been filed against the 5,000 returns that should be filed by Aug. 1, County Auditor Norman Wolfe said today. The total of personal tax collections to date stands at $26,367 with $20,642 of that amount representing classified taxes.

DENVER—(INS)—The "sweater girl" was out today at the Denver ordnance plant.

Officials issued orders that girl employes should stop wearing the type of garment that brought Lana Turner her first fame in the films. It distracted the attention of the men employes, officials said, and slowed down war production.

STARTS CHECK ON SHORTAGE IN FARM LABOR

Employment Service Sends 6,000 Questionnaires To Farmers In Area.

PLAN FOR CONTACTS

Handley Says Those Needing Help For Spring Planting Will Be Interviewed.

Start of a search for labor for Richland and Morrow county farmers in puzzling circumstances because of the draft law and defense industries, was announced today by C. W. Handley, district manager of the Ohio Employment service.

Handley said that questionnaires were being sent out to approximately 6,000 farmers in this area in an effort to ascertain their employment requirements and to coordinate their farms into the national wartime effort.

The district manager said that farm youths have left home to join the army or to accept the high-paying jobs being offered by defense industries in the cities, leaving the farms with an insufficient number of workers to maintain production.

Last week, members of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association made plans to aid the farmers. Association members said they would hire laborers or work on the farms themselves, if necessary.

Handley said that the questionnaires will be used to determine the number of laborers needed and the facilities to house and feed them. After the farmers have returned the question blanks to the district employment office, according to Handley, Employment service employes will contact the farmers personally or by telephone.

"The idea of the program is to aid the farmer as much as possible to maintain his production throughout the war years," said Handley. "If all his labor is taken away, this obviously becomes an impossibility. We are trying to obtain enough labor to help the farmer continue his work."

Handley said that his office was making a file of the scores of workers available for employment and would attempt to round up those suited for farm work.

URGE SALES TAX

New Yorkers Oppose Plan To Increase Income Levy.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The New York state chamber of commerce today urged congress to scrap treasury proposals for an additional $6,000,000,000 in individual and corporation income taxes and to make a sales tax, with no exceptions, the basis of the 1942 war revenue program.

In a statement prepared for presentation to the house ways and means committee, the chamber proposed that a retail sales tax of two or three per cent be levied on food; a tax of five per cent on other utilitarian consumer goods, and a tax of 10 per cent on luxuries.

These taxes, the chamber estimated would yield $4,000,000,000.

City's Reservoir Easy Sabotage Target

These pictures show how Axis agents, bent on destruction of Mansfield's water distribution system, could accomplish their job in short order despite armed guards stationed at the Woodland reservoir. News-Journal reporters yesterday prowled and poked about the place for half an hour unchallenged. Upper left is a close shot of the pump house on Woodland road, which could have been demolished with a bomb tossed through one of the windows. Upper right, City Hall Reporter William Murray starts to climb the elevated tank tower but decided against it, on the grounds that it would be easier to plant a charge of dynamite at the foot of the structure. Lower left, Guard Arch Purdy posed for this picture after reporters asked him to unwrap his shotgun. Lower right, Murray surveys wire fencing that has lain in rolls near the reservoir while city officials wait for fairer weather to make the installation.

Blowing Up Mansfield Reservoir Would Be Easy, Reporters Find

Even In Broad Daylight A Bomb Could Be Planted And Entire City Would Be Helpless.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS AND WILLIAM F. MURRAY

If we had been Axis agents we could have wrecked Mansfield's water distribution system yesterday—easily!

Do you know how important water is? Do you know why Hongkong fell to the Japanese?

Do you know what would happen to Mansfield, a city of 37,000 people, if it had no water?

Do you think a saboteur wouldn't like to ruin the water supply of Mansfield, and a hundred other cities like it?

The answers are obvious. We are at war! Saboteurs are at work!

Without water, this entire city—10,000 homes and industries employing 15,000 persons engaged in turning out vital war supplies—would be without fire protection, and without drinking water.

In less time than it takes to tell, we could have blown up the Woodland reservoir; a blow that would have taken months and hundreds of thousands of dollars of taxpayers' money to repair while a distressed city exposed itself to an epidemic of disease.

Under the very eyes of an armed watchman (his shotgun was plugged and wrapped in paper when we finally found him) whom the city administration has employed to guard against disaster at the reservoir we could have planted at least a dozen charges of dynamite.

Without attempting to hide our curiosity we parked our car in the very shadow of the elevated tank that supplies pressure to the mains. If it were destroyed, Mansfield's water system would be crippled.

The car remained there for half an hour while we toured the reservoir, poking among the bushes, inspecting valves and electric and telephone lines unchallenged.

We started to climb the tower but a blizzard was raging at the

British Charge Jap Atrocity In Captured Hongkong Area

(By United Press)

LONDON—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden asserted in the house of commons today that testimony of eye-witnesses had established the fact of Japanese atrocities against military prisoners and civilians at Hong Kong. He charged that 50 officers and men of the British army, bound hand and foot, had been bayoneted to death.

"Women, both Asiatic and European, were raped and murdered and one entire Chinese district was declared a brothel regardless of the status of inhabitants," he said.

"Atrocities were similar to the barbarities which aroused horror at the time of the Nanking massacre in 1937."

Eden said that the atrocities were committed without distinction as to race and color.

All survivors of the British garrison, he charged, were herded in a camp of brick huts without doors, windows, lights or sanitation.

The dead were buried in a corner of the camp," he said.

"No drugs or medical facilities were supplied."

Eden said that the Japanese would not bear independent investigation as they had refused permission for a representative of the International Red Cross committee to visit the camp.

"The government was unwilling to publish any accounts of Japanese atrocities until they were confirmed beyond the possibility of a doubt," he said.

"Unfortunately, there is no longer room for doubt."

A ruling by the Ohio supreme court will permit the board of education to issue bonds outside the 10-mill tax limitation and thereby operate the public schools on a normal basis next fall, it was disclosed today.

However, a recent supreme court ruling will enable the schools to obtain approximately $84,000 for operating expenses next fall.

Dominion Offer Seen as Price For War Help

British Cabinet Reported Ready To Grant New Status As Jap Armies Beat Closer To Border Of Empire's Treasure Area.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill will make a statement regarding India at the next sitting of parliament, Sir Stafford Cripps, leader of the house of commons, announced today.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Dominion status for India as the price for her millions' war support for Britain was regarded in British circles today as a virtual certainty and the weight of cabinet influence apparently was veering toward an offer which would be put into force promptly.

With the mailed fist of the Japanese army beating on the door of the empire's treasure chamber and its people's attitude tepid toward Britain because of unfulfilled aspirations for freedom, the cabinet debated the measure of Indian independence Saturday and yesterday.

Informed sources said the snag was on the timing of dominion status—whether to grant it now or promise it at a deferred date.

Sir Stafford Cripps was said to be leading the fight for an immediate grant to India of the same rank in the commonwealth as Canada and the other dominions. Prime Minister Churchill, formerly an advocate of strong British rule in India, was believed to be swinging toward the same opinion, it was reported.

Essentially, there are three plans for India believed to be before the cabinet:

1. A flat offer of post-war status.
2. A gradual grant of dominion status during the war.
3. An offer of immediate dominion status.

Indians here have declared that the only plan acceptable to their countrymen would be the third—and that it would represent the minimum of India's demands. Others say that even immediate dominion status would be unsatisfactory, that Indians have reached a point where they would accept nothing but a "completely independent nation."

Inner factions among the British dictate the haggling of the cabinet.

To most Britons, dominion status means independence and the nation generally is expected to accept such a grant calmly. There are signs in the press even of impatience for a decision.

On the other hand, there is a large British group with extensive interests in India and it is hesitant about an immediate introduction of dominion status. Most of its strength is among the conservatives, Churchill's own party.

The cabinet, supposedly shifting between the first and third plans, thus might choose the second as a compromise.

Those familiar with India emphasize the catastrophic consequences which could result from a false step. This consideration plus the complexity of the problem that another week may pass

GLOOMY: Far Eastern Picture Dark; Japs Surge Past Rangoon

(By Associated Press)

Japanese troops surged on westward today beyond fallen Rangoon toward the Irawaddy oil fields and the fabulous riches of India.

Rangoon itself, the Burmese capital, was a city of fire-blackened ruins.

On other fronts:

The battle for Java was apparently a closed chapter, with Japanese forces occupying Bandoeng, former Allied military headquarters, and presumably the big Soerabaja naval base.

Dutch army officers said it was believed the Japanese had landed 50,000 reinforcements on Java last Saturday and now had three divisions (perhaps 75,000 troops) near Soerabaja alone.

Blacked-out communications hid the extent of any fighting which might be continuing.

Aneta, the Dutch news agency, said N. E. I officials were working out plans for continuing the struggle against Japan from outside the overrun Indies and declared "new machinery" for that purpose would soon be set up in "certain parts of the world."

In the Philippines, Japan's assignment of her most successful army commander to lead the campaign against Gen. Douglas MacArthur's heroic defenders indicated that a supreme attempt was forthcoming to wipe out American-Filipino resistance on Batan peninsula.

Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita, conqueror of Malaya and Singapore, was appointed commander in chief of the invasion forces, succeeding Lieut-Gen. Masaharu Homma, who was reported to have committed suicide in chagrin over his failure to crusdh MacArthur's little army.

Australian planes kept shrap watch for the expected approach of a Japanese invasion armada toward Australia from New Guinea, where the enemy had already established three beachheads on the Australian-mandated island.

Sea-borne Japanese forces made a third landing on New Guinea today, and enemy bombers blasted anew at Port Moresby, New Guinea, only 280 miles from the Australian mainland. It was the tenth attack there.

The situation in India hung in delicate balance.

Dispatches from New Delhi said

AIR EDGE: Soviets, British Smash At Foe From Two Sides

(By Associated Press)

Soviet Russia claimed a one-sided edge today in aerial fighting on her western front and British Royal Air Force squadrons pounded targets within Germany overnight in a pre-spring bombing offensive.

Essen, site of the Krupp munitions works, was under fire for the second night in a row.

In addition to attacks upon Germany proper, objectives along the Nazi-occupied French channel coast were raided, British said.

Heavy British guns emplaced along the Strait of Dover fired at intervals in the night, apparently at German shipping, and shore watchers saw a flare and heavy explosions lighting up the French coast between Boulogne and Calais, where the RAF has often struck in force.

The Soviet information bureau said 358 German planes had been destroyed, in the air or on the ground, in the week of March 1-7, apparent delay in Prime Minister Churchill's statement to parliament on India had resulted in disappointment.

Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the all-India Moslem league, declared in a cablegram to Churchill that Moslem India would revolt if the statement were detrimental to Moslem interests, particularly any plan to divide India into self-ruling Moslem and Hindu states.

Traditionally deadly enemies, India's 240,000,000 Hindus outnumber the Moslems by three to one.

British military quarters virtually conceded the loss of the entire southern tip of Burma from Rangoon to the Bay of Bengal, but declared that British imperial troops would fight on in central Burma "side by side with our Chinese allies."

British forces isolated in the Pegu sector, 40 miles north of Rangoon, were reported slashing their way through Japanese lines to the main imperial army, which, in turn, drove through enemy columns astride the Rangoon-Prome road after "heavy fighting."

Prome lies 90 miles northwest of Rangoon.

British withdrawal from all of southern Burma was indicated as British demolition squads wrecked public utilities at Bassein, key city of the Irrawadda river delta, 90 miles west of Rangoon, and American engineers also prepared to smash the great Irrawaddy oil fields 300 miles northwest of Rangoon.

RAF pilots reported that smoke blackened the skies to a height of 15,000 feet over Rangoon as flames roared through the city's vital areas and British troops withdrew to the north.

With the 10-day-old battle of Java all but ended, speculation arose on Japan's next move: invasion of Australia or India, or both?

Japanese imperial headquarters spoke of the "brilliant military results" of the campaign to date and listed 79,999 United Nations soldiers as slain even before the fall of Singapore.

It said the Japanese had sunk or damaged 767 Allied vessels, had captured another 134 and had destroyed 1,161 airplanes.

Already operating 3,500 miles south of Tokyo, the invaders of Java are relatively close to the north Australian coast and preparatory bombing has battered ports of the commonwealth and adjacent New Guinea.

Lieut. Gen. Hubertus Van Mook of The Netherlands East Indies estimated they totaled eight divisions—perhaps as many as 200,000 men under Japanese tables of organization.

Japanese imperial headquarters said yesterday that "with the fall of Rangoon, the main objective of Japanese operations on the Burma front has been attained," but the British indicated they expected a continued offensive.

Ships Fail to Halt Advance on Rangoon

HEADQUARTERS OF THE BRITISH HIGH COMMAND IN BURMA —(INS)— Unsuccessful efforts of British naval units to aid land forces in stemming the Japanese advance on Rangoon were revealed in an official communique today.

The Japanese suffered heavy casualties, the communique said, but managed to overrun the city and to cut the vital road between Rangoon and Prome.

The communique said:

"Withdrawal from Rangoon was precipitated by temporary insulation of British forces at Pegu and landing by the enemy on the north shores of the Baki river and on the west bank of the Rangoon river.

"It can now be disclosed that during the landing operations, H. M. S. Hindustan (an armed sloop of the Royal Indian navy), contacted an enemy landing party at the mouth of the Rangoon river on March 6, capturing one landing craft but losing the remainder in the shallows of the China Baki river.

"These subsequently were located and machine-gunned by R.A.F. fighters but already had landed their contents.

"In the Pegu area, the enemy had infiltrated through near Pegu and Yomas and having isolated the Pegu forces struck west with a strong force of armored fighting vehicles.

"Consequent on the landing, all civil control ceased in the delta and it was decided to evacuate Rangoon and carry on the fight in central Burma alongside our Chinese allies.

"Latest reports indicate that during the withdrawal of British forces from Rangoon, the enemy managed to cut the Rangoon-Prome road in the vicinity of Hmawbi, 25 miles north of Rangoon.

U. S. Officer Serves With Chiang Kai-Shek

CHUNGKING—(INS)— Appointment of Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell of the United States army as chief of staff under Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek was announced officially today.

The communique also stated China has decided to send a military mission to Washington headed by General Hsiung Shi-Hui, China's military representative on the council of the United Nations.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The United States and China, it was learned on high authority today, are nearing conclusion of a mutual aid and economic pact similar to the one recently signed with Great Britain.

Negotiations are being carried out under the lend-lease act, but the implications of the new agreement will go far beyond an arrangement for continued aid to China.

Warns Japs Can Invade Australia

ADELAIDE —(INS)— The Japanese are fully capable of carrying out a large-scale landing on the Australian mainland, Major General Iven MacKay, commander-in-chief of home defense, warned today.

"Such an undertaking would be difficult but it is not beyond Japanese capacity," he said. "Australians must not flop back of the line like jelly-fish and expect others to come to their aid. There is no use sitting back and waiting."

Jap Cruiser Shells Philippine Port

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— A Japanese cruiser has shelled the important port of Cebu, second city of the Philippines, in an apparent effort to tighten the invaders' control of sea communications preparatory to a new offensive against Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces, it was revealed today.

An army communique said that for the second time in a week, a Japanese light cruiser hurled shells into the city, but that "only slight damage was inflicted."

Cebu, lying in the heart of the Philippine archipelago, is 300 miles south of Manila and central point of the Visayas islands. It dominates the passages vital to Japan's movements of supplies and reinforcements and to Sulu sea, south of Negros and Cebu.

A foreboding calm hung over the Batan jungle battlefront, the war department said, where MacArthur's invincibles braced themselves for a "Nazi-style" Japanese offensive that may be more savage than any they have met and crushed in their 13 weeks of amazing resistance.

There has been neither ground nor aerial activity in Batan since Monday's communique, it was stated.

The Japanese light cruiser which appeared off Cebu, fired several shells into the city of about 145,000 population, it was stated.

RAF Sets Big Fires In Second Essen Raid

LONDON— (AP) —RAF bombers set fires, some of them of "great size," in a heavy attack last night on the German industrial city of Essen, site of the Krupp munitions works, the air ministry reported today.

It was the second successive night attack on Essen.

Three British bombers were reported missing from operations which included attacks on other objectives in the war-important Ruhr valley.

(The German high command acknowledged that British bombers were over western Germany last night and said that there were civilian casualties. Berlin reported only one British plane shot down.)

An intensification of daylight air operations was seen in the announcement that six German fighter planes were shot down over northern France yesterday. Five were credited to RAF fighters and the other to a British bomber.

See Allied Move to Take Madagascar

LONDON — (AP) — Unofficial quarters discussed the possibility today that Allied troops might soon move to occupy the Vichy-controlled island of Madagascar in the western part of the Indian ocean, close to Africa's east coast and in a strategic position to control Allied supply lines.

They pointed out that since the fall of Singapore the importance of Madagascar has been doubled, and that such an Allied move might have to be made to forestall Japanese occupation of the island.

They emphasized, too, the fact that a Japanese mission is reported to have been in Madagascar for the past six weeks, negotiating for naval and air bases.

One informed but unofficial source said occupation of the island was imperative because the Axis already is in possession of one naval base in the south Indian ocean, on Vichy-owned Kerguelen island (desolation land) southeast of Capetown.

DESTRUCTION OF CITY RESERVOIR WOULD BE EASY

That's What N-J Reporters Find When They Inspect Vital Utility.

time and we decided against it. Saboteurs, we agreed, would plant a bomb at the foot of the structure. That's all that would be needed to destroy it.

On the western side of the huge 6,000,000-gallon storage plant we found a valve protected only by a cheap padlock that could have been knocked out with a hammer and the reservoir drained.

North of the reservoir, in a field, we discovered rolls and rolls of wire fencing purchased by the city a couple of months ago for erection around the storage supply. We took pictures of the material lying in the snow and slush.

Street Superintendent Charles Hebel under whose direction the fence is to be installed says the weather has been too adverse to pour concrete into the holes in which the posts are to be fixed.

We wondered if a saboteur would have waited for "fair weather" to plant a bomb?

We wondered, also, if Mansfield's city officials—and for that matter, all Mansfielders—thought this was a tea party or a war.

We could easily have planted a bomb in the pump house on Woodland road. Equipment here forces water from the reservoir to the tank. It undoubtedly would have been much easier than attempting to wreck the tower. It would have had the same effect and a bomb could have easily been tossed through a window.

We went back to the car after taking a few more pictures. Then we spotted a telephone line that runs to the watchman's shanty on top the reservoir. Two blocks away we could have cut the circuit.

By this time we were a little skeptical about the armed watchman city officials had told us about. We hadn't seen him and decided to investigate.

So to the top of the reservoir and more surprises!

Halfway to the shanty we stopped and took a picture of the elevated tower outlined against the sky.

We proceeded. Still no challenge. We expected a hail of shot, any time. But none greeted us. Neither did the watchman. We trudged through the snow to the door. The latch gave and we walked inside.

Arch Purdy, 60, a former street worker, who has been on the job the past two months, was on duty. His shotgun—barrels plugged and wrapped in newspaper—lay on a table on the other side of the small room.

We set the camera down and asked if we could warm ourselves. Our genial host granted permission as we commented about the weather. Finally we introduced ourselves. In the meantime however, we could have trussed him up and taken our time about opening the hatches on the reservoir to contaminate the water supply.

Purdy had been on duty for a couple hours, he said. Usually he makes a round every hour but we observed no footprints in the snow and slush outside that would indicate anyone had been around the shack during the afternoon.

Of course, it was bitter cold and a fierce wind was blowing across the reservoir. It's one of the highest points in the state.

After we had warmed our shins, Purdy agreed to pose for a picture. We asked him to unwrap his gun and to be sure and pull the plugs out of the barrels. We wanted the picture to look real!

Purdy admitted he hadn't been troubled much with people poking around the place. Several weeks ago he observed a fellow taking a picture of the tank and gave police the license number of the car.

But he admitted that he hadn't seen us wandering about the place. Neither had he seen our car which had stood by the tower for half an hour.

It isn't a very pretty story, is it? But if you think we were just stirring up false alarms, think how you'd get along without water.

Departing Dealer Honored

Automobile dealers live a pretty competitive life—at least they used to. But they forgot all about that last night in order to give a farewell party for R. B. (Mud) Gardner, veteran dealer, who left today to become a captain in the army air corps. The farewell was in the form of a dinner at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, and with Ralph E. Moorhead as spokesmen, the dealers presented Capt. Gardner with a fitted toilet case. Shown in the picture above are Moorhead, Gardner and Carroll J. Solomon, secretary of the Mansfield Automobile Dealers association. The group dined on pheasant (incidentally, the pheasant came from Gardner's farm, southeast of the city).

'SHOOT STRAIGHT, HOLD YOUR FIRE'—RICKENBACKER ADVICE

(By International News Service)

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. — Straight-shooting, straight-talking Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker revealed today, as he was about to start a 15,000-mile tour of all U. S. Army Air Corps combat fields, something of what he expects to tell the fledgling wartime flyers of a new generation.

Capt. Rickenbacker, who shot down 26 enemy planes during the first World war to become the AEF's ace of aces, is making the tour at the request of the war department. He will visit all the army air corps' pursuit and light and heavy bombardment squadrons to give them the benefit of his World war exploits and his long career in aviation since.

"Foremost among the lessons I'd like to teach them," said the dynamic Rickenbacker, "is the necessity that they learn to shoot straight and to hold their fire until they're certain it will be effective.

"The best pilot in the world is of little value in combat if he can't shoot down the enemy. Most of these young flyers of today are boys suddenly catapulated into manhood with manhood's responsibilities.

"They must learn the art of war is to make every bullet count. They must learn to hold their fire until they have the enemy in their sights, less than 100 yards away—and then let 'em have it, and know when to stop to have something left for the next one.

"Any serial fighter up there without any ammunition is no good to himself or his comrades. They must realize that they have only the fraction of a second, flying at 400 miles an hour, when their guns will be dead on the enemy and they can let fly.

Rickenbacker's trip is expected to require six weeks, but the itinerary and dates were withheld as a military secret.

BOLD THIEF

Woman Drives Up To Gasoline Station, Steals Tire.

Most automobile tire thieves work under the cover of darkness but two of them drove up to the service station of Raymond A. Ling, 247 Park avenue east, this morning, took a tire and drove away.

Shortly after, they were apprehended by state highway patrolmen at Lodi and will be returned to Mansfield to face petit larceny charges. The patrolmen had been informed of the robbery by the Mansfield police.

Ling told police that a woman was driving the auto but that he saw another person in the rear seat, covered with a blanket. When the woman started to drive away without paying for the tire, Ling said he grabbed her arm but let go because he thought the person in the rear seat had a gun trained on him.

Police said that the tire stolen was a used tire.

CONGRESS QUIET AFTER WARNING

Lull Follows Presidential Word That Rising Prices Threaten Inflation.

the cost of the war and the national debt, hamper the drive for victory, and inevitably plunge everyone—city workers and farmers alike—into ruinous deflation later on."

The president, who already has announced his objection to restricting the government's power to dispose of surplus farm stocks at less than parity, spoke on the same program with Vice President Henry A. Wallace, who initiated the administration's farm program as secretary of agriculture, and the present agriculture department head, Claude R. Wickard. The president did not refer to the current farm price dispute in his address.

The farm program speeches were delivered after the house postponed until Wednesday or possibly later in the week action on an amendment to the $700,000,000 agriculture supply bill which would strike from the bill a farm bloc-dictated section prohibiting the commodity credit corporation from disposing of surplus farm stocks at less than parity prices with certain tentatively approved exceptions. The exceptions would permit sales of grain for feed, seed and industrial alcohol and of cotton for use in developing new uses for that commodity.

The president said the fight against inflation demands cooperation and restraint by all economic groups.

"It seems to me that we ought to feel proud of the undoubted fact that we are getting cooperation and a reasonably fair balance among 90 per cent of our population and that if less than 10 per cent of the population is chiseling we still have a pretty good national record."

Marion Expected To Disclose Plans For Future Play In Athletic Loop.

SHELBY — The semi-annual meeting of the North Central Ohio League officials and representatives from the various schools in the league will be held at 6:30 p. m. today at the Hotel Talbot in Galion.

Annual election of officers will take place during the business session. Principal O. H. Schaaf of Shelby high school is secretary-treasurer of the league.

Harding this winter had to play all of its games away from home because it did not have a gym in Marion suitable to play basketball on. The league basketball schedule for next winter will be drawn up at the meeting tonight.

The league officials will also discuss how the tire rationing program and war will effect the league schedule.

Attending the meeting from Shelby will be Principal Schaaf, Coach William Query and Faculty Manager Bruce Graham.

What do I do?
CURVES + SPEED = SHORT TIRE LIFE
Fast drivers in regions where roads are highly curved often get only 7,000 miles from a set of tires. That gives you an idea of how hard curves are on tires—unless you slow down. A sound idea is to reduce your speed on curves to the point where there seems to be no side pull on the car. Drivers who avoid abusing their tires do get up to 50,000 miles of wear. You can, too!

GEN. JOHNSON: Must Call Women to Munitions Plants

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — Some very remarkable simplifications have occurred recently in the high command of both the army and our industrial effort.

Gen. Johnson.

One man leadership in the office of Mr. Nelson was chief among the latter. Fundamental and far-reaching reorganization of the army effective, March 9, was the big one in the army.

It is set forth by way of description in war department circular 59 of March 2, but the field is so large and complex that you have to be an expert on the war department to know what it means.

The idea was to set up separate commands for all ground troops, all army air forces and the entire service of supply and to abolish or minimize every existing bureau or unit (there are dozens of them) that does not fit well into this pattern.

On that part of the idea a pretty good job was done, but it is far from being perfect. Compromises had still to be made, chiefly in the service of supply. This arose from two causes. One was the peculiar position and statutory authority of the secretary of war.

That office was created during, and completed just after, World war one. The idea was to have in the war department some civilian who would preserve the essential ideas and traditions of the old war industries board. The objective was good, but the means created many conflicts.

This new order had to respect that statutory condition, with a result that the new commanding general, service of supply, is responsible to two bosses—Mr. Patterson, assistant secretary of war and General Marshall, chief of staff.

The other compromise was necessary on account of Mr. Nelson. Under the old idea of the war industries board the armed services were to say of munitions, what they wanted, in what quantities, and where and when and do the actual purchasing.

The war industries board was there to see that they got the stuff from industry, to decide conflicts in their requests and to help them in any way possible. It did no actual purchasing. It did not specify types of armament.

Mr. Nelson seems to have a different idea. He wants to run purchasing much more directly. He is a purchasing agent by profession. He has moved his own W. P. B. assistants, usually young lawyers and economists, into the very offices of such officials as Mr. Patterson, not merely to surround the official's assistants but also to influence if not over-ride their decisions.

Mr. Nelson's own frequently-repeated "argument" is becoming a sort of secret official joke around some of these offices:

"That isn't the way Harry Hopkins and the president want it done."

I don't wish to over-emphasize these conflicts. There hasn't yet been time to judge how they will work out. I am merely recording that they have embedded in this order possible germs of future troubles and especially again to repeat an old and sure principle.

The best plan in the world won't work under the direction of incompetent men but able men of understanding and good-will can make the worst plan in the world work.

Some very good men moved to the top in this reorganization. Somervell of the service of supply is one of them. If he has the support and confidence and a minimum of interference from Judge Patterson and Mr. Nelson, he will work wonders. If he has them not, he is licked before he starts.

That would be a pity because, for the first time since our feet became so unthriftily entangled in this world-wide mess, we are just beginning to see daylight in our difficult supply situation. Any new fiasco could hold us up for weeks.

SENATORS IN LINE ON PAY FIXING PLAN

Agree That Wages Should Be Kept In Balance With Cost of Living.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A representative group of senators today indicated general agreement with the theory that war time wages should be held in line with the cost of living.

Price Administrator Leon Henderson recently suggested that to the war labor board. President Philip Murray of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, asserting that Henderson favored a static wage level, termed the proposal "highly unfair" in a New York speech Sunday.

Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R., O.), said he believed the administration should seek a "stabilization" of wages as called for in the price control law. Outside of individual hardship cases in depressed industry, he said, "the only argument for increasing wages now is a corresponding increase in the cost of living."

"I don't think the profits of industry are any argument," he added, "because those profits are likely to be taken away."

Taft said current proposals for relaxing the 40-hour week would have the effect of reducing wages of those now working more than 40 hours. He pointed out that the wage-hour laws does not prohibit work in excess of 40 hours but calls for payment at a rate fifty per cent higher than the regular rate.

He opposed relaxation of the 40 hour week but favored elimination of the payment of double time for Sundays, as tending to be a "penalty."

Sen. Robert M. La Follette, (Prog. Wis.), said the question whether wages rise as the war progresses will depend entirely on what happens to the cost of living.

SEE LA GUARDIA FACING JURY

Officials Press Probe of Charge Mayor Hid Use of City Employes.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Frank S. Hogan, successor to Thomas E. Dewey as district attorney of New York county (Manhattan), was believed ready today to summon Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia before a grand jury to answer a charge that he tried to conceal the use of city employes and materials to build a courtyard for Democratic National Committee Chairman Edward J. Flynn.

The charge was made by Paul J. Kern, whom LaGuardia recently ousted as president of the municipal civil service commission for attacking another branch of the city administration.

LaGuardia demanded that he be removed from office and indicted, if the charge could be proved; if not, that those responsible for publishing it be punished.

"I am prepared to appear before the grand jury and, of course, waive immunity in accordance with the provisions of the city charter," he wrote Hogan.

Hogan said the charge was being investigated by District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of Bronx county.

Kern charged that the courtyard constructed was engineered through the office of Bronx Borough President James J. Lyons, that 9,000 city paving blocks were carried from the Bronx to Flynn's summer home on Lake Mahopac in Putnam county, and that on Jan. 28 the same trucks that transported the blocks dumped dissimilar stone at a city yard.

INJURIES DOUBLE IN PLANT MISHAPS, SPEAKER TELLS CLUB

Fewer persons were killed in accidents in Mansfield industry last year than in 1940, but more than twice as many workers suffered permanent injuries in 1941, Harry L. Sain of the Ohio Industrial commission, said last night in a talk before the Mansfield-Shelby Foremen's club at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Quoting figures from the industrial commission records, Sain pointed out that Mansfield had only two industrial fatalities last year as compared with eight in 1940. The number of permanent injuries, however, jumped from 15 in 1940 to 32 last year. Total number of accidents in industries was 2,043 in 1941 and 2,662 in 1940.

Foremen in industrial plants must pay more attention to the safety of their workmen in war time, because it takes 18 workers back home to keep one soldier in the firing lines, he asserted.

He quoted figures showing that 01,500 persons died in accidents of all kinds in the nation last year and added that more persons are killed or maimed at home than in the nation's army and navy.

Accidents resulted in injuries to 9,300,000 persons in 1941 and cost more than three billion dollars, he said. Injury claims filed in Ohio alone totaled 282,000 during the year, while industrial accidents in Mansfield caused workers to lose 63 911 days of work.

"You foremen must create safety in your plants by awakening from your complacency and doing something about accidents," he continued.

The city of Mansfield has shown a marked improvement in safety measures for city employes in the past four years, reducing the insurance rate for city workers from $5.25 per $100 earned by the workers in 1938 to $2.98 per $100 last year, he added.

Following Sain's talk, the foremen saw color movies of Ohio beauty spots and oddities in the state. The musical program was presented by students of Eugene Smart's studio. The program was sponsored by the Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company.

WAR SURVEY SHOWS LACK OF WORKERS

Reveals Housewives Will Have To Leave Homes For Jobs as In Last War.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — An official war inventory of the nation's human resources declared today that millions of women would have to be shifted from housework to munitions factories in the expansion of war industries.

The survey was made by the bureau of census. It contained no specific mention of proposals that American women be drafted into factories as women are in England, but asserted:

"The maximum movement into the male labor force can hardly exceed 2,000,000 men. A larger expansion of the total labor supply evidently can be achieved only by drawing millions of women into the labor force."

The report said that 15,000,000 housewives between 18 and 44 years old represented the principal reserve from which additional war labor might be drawn.

"An enormous amount of manpower will be needed for replacing workers withdrawn into the armed forces and for expanding the output of war materials," it stated.

"Some of these needs can be met by utilizing the workers who are still unemployed, by lengthening working hours and by transferring workers from nonessential civilian industries.

"In the future, however, such measures will not be sufficient. As in World war I, millions of people who are not ordinarily workers must be drawn into the labor force."

The report acknowledged that many women were prevented from taking jobs by family responsibilities, but said flatly:

"The groups from which most of the additional workers must be drawn are the women engaged in home housework or not in the labor force for other reasons."

Although the report predicted a shift of young, unmarried women from rural areas into cities where they could be directly employed in war industries, it said that the great majority of the needed increase in labor supply must come from women in urban and rural nonfarm areas.

When the population count was made on April 1, 1940, there were 50,600,000 males over 14 years of age, of whom 39,900,000 already were in the labor force. Of the remaining number, about 4,000,000 were 14 to 17 years and in school, 3,000,000 were unable to work because of old age, chronic illness or disability, 800,000 were in penal and mental institutions.

The Public Affairs Study group of the Y. W. C. A. will unite with the Business Girls' club for this occasion instead of holding a seperate meeting this week. Miss Margaret Rizer, club president, will preside and Miss Jean Shively will summarize recent club discussions.

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Speaking For Myself.

I am beginning to deplore the tendency of women in branches of war service to wear their uniforms after "working hours" and to such places of light amusement as the Stork club, the 21 bar, and Morocco's Champagne room. The number of these seems to be increasing lately, and I think the trend is a bad one, for at least two reasons.

Kilgallen

First, it destroys the symbolic effect of a uniform on a woman. A uniform proclaims "I am working. I am busy. I am efficient." But when a woman's uniform is worn off duty, when it enters a cafe and serves as a background for a whisky and soda, when its wearer does the rhumba, then it looks incongruous to me. It loses its value as a symbol of service and discipline.

I certainly don't think that a girl who works hard in the Red Cross or the AWVS should refrain from having a drink or going dancing afterwards, but I maintain that she ought to change into mufti before she does it. A uniform that proclaims "I am working" looks a little silly when its wearer is playing.

There is another, and perhaps even sounder reason for not wearing uniforms at night that has been advanced to me by the male element.

Gentlemen in and out of the service have made it clear to me in a number of discussions that while they think girls in uniform look pretty natty behind a desk at noon, they think girls in uniform look pretty drab in a cabaret at midnight. One young and sentimental doughboy told me he had a quite horrible experience last week when, after dreaming for several days about the doll-like loveliness of his sweetheart, whom he was to see when he got his leave, the big day came and he arrived to take her to dinner . . . and found her waiting, brisk and military, in her uniform!

The effect on his morale, he said, was soul-shattering.

Army and Navy wives, of course, understand this point and have always constituted a set that dressed very prettily and whipped into evening gowns at the drop of an invitation . . . out the rest of the female population is going to have to do a little learning along these lines.

Aside from the girls who own uniforms, there is a whole school of women who believe they ought to "dress down" in wartime, even to the point of not wearing an evening dress until the last shot has been fired.

Hollywood's recent Academy Award dinner was a silly example of this—and I say silly because of all the women who attended in street clothes I will bet a defense bond there was not one who didn't have five perfectly good evening dresses hanging in her closet. Nobody saved a cent by going in daytime attire; the only effect was to make the celebration look drab.

Well, I don't believe in looking drab in wartime. I believe in looking as cheerful as possible on (if needs be) a drab budget. I don't think it's necessary to keep up with every merchandising fad and have a facial a day and buy the latest shade of "Slapajap Red" lipstick to assist morale—but on the other hand I don't see who is helped (except the manufacturers of plain black dresses) if we all go around looking like mourners.

The lads who are fighting our war for us have to look at uniforms all day and for weeks on end. I'm for giving them an eyeful of glamor when they get home on leave, even if it's last year's glamor.

Better last year's glamor than this year's gloom.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MARCH 10, 1942.

It's gradually reaching the point when sunrise and War time will do a better job of co-ordinating.

Those "first robins" that you have been seeing—don't forget to throw out some feed for them on wintry days.

Six million more people are becoming "tax conscious" this year—and congressmen may soon begin hearing from them about those non-military expenditures.

'Long War' Is Only Safe Prediction

NOTHING seems more futile, at the moment, than the numerous "expert" and inexpert attempts to predict next moves in the war, likely length of the conflict and probable pattern of peace to follow the end of hostilities.

All of the early forecasts have gone by the board and the underestimated Japanese have been making steady progress toward their ambitious goal of establishing supremacy of the yellow race in the Far East.

On the other hand, and to the advantage of the United Nations, predictions that Germany would make a quick conquest of Russia also proved faulty and Hitler's engagement on that front must be credited with giving Great Britain and the United States more time in which to make delayed preparations for defensive and offensive action.

As one after another of the British and Dutch strongholds in the Far East fell before Japanese onslaughts, there was each time a hope—sometimes even a belief—that the next would be different and that the Allies would eventually concentrate enough strength to fight off the Japs.

Now it is Australia and its environs that hold the limelight in the southwestern Pacific struggle, and it is not well to be overconfident of the outcome of that phase of the campaign, for Australia and the vicinity islands will be largely dependent on great help from the United States and Britain in defending against the heavy Japanese attack that is anticipated.

If a part of winning the war includes getting back the territory that has already been taken over by Japan, and additional areas now under serious threat, the only safe prediction seems to be that the war will continue much longer than most Americans anticipate—and that war plans in this country should contemplate that probability.

Right To Criticize Upheld

THE RIGHT of newspapers to adversely criticize acts of public officials has been so frequently upheld by the courts that it is accepted as commonplace by all except a few vulnerable office holders who naturally prefer having no newspaper reference made to their methods of handling public business.

Most recent decision along this line is by the appellate division of the New York supreme court, which exonerated the Binghamton Press in a case brought by Congressman Edwin A. Hall, who charged libel in three editorials which criticized his vote against the lend-lease bill last year.

In the opinion of the court: "National legislators who participate in the formation of governmental policies should be held to the strictest official accountability. Opposition newspapers and editorial writers should not be limited to weak, tepid and supine criticism and discussion."

Criticism of the acts of public officials has come to be regarded not only as a "right" but also as a duty, and instances in which merited criticism, coupled with revelations of official rottenness in the handling of city, state and national affairs are matters of common knowledge—as in Detroit, Kansas City, Cincinnati, for example.

The crookedness and graft that has marked the conduct of public business in many cities, the close link of some administrative officials with illegal activities, and the frequency with which criminal conduct has resulted in penitentiary sentences for persons entrusted with elective or appointive offices, evidence need for the freedom to criticize that has been accorded to newspapers as well as to individuals.

And, it may also be said, newspapers ordinarily feel a high degree of responsibility in the capacity of critic, making sure that no undeserved adverse comment is made on the conduct of any person serving in an official position.

Home Precautions Against Fire

PEOPLE in industrial cities are being told that the main thing to do about homes is to be prepared against danger of fire. Not because bombing is expected in the interior, but because a big fire in any industrial plant would call out all the fire apparatus for miles around. Then if a small fire occurred in a home, set by a cigaret, an overheated furnace or a match dropped near inflammable material, there would be no local fire equipment to put it out. People must be more dependent on themselves.

The first preventive is watchfulness. Care about matches, furnaces, paper in the basement or near the kitchen stove. Safe ash trays for cigarets.

The next is to have the two pails of water and two of sand close by, indoors if possible. The ordinary fire is easily extinguished if caught when small. The next is to know that windows and doors must be instantly closed to shut off the draft which feeds the fire. If you have to get the pails from the porch, let the door be open only two seconds, one to go out and one to come in. Keep doors closed.

The last and perhaps most important is not to go around wasting energy worrying about such things. You don't even think about letting the baby play with knives. Dad keeps his in his pocket. Mother keeps the kitchen drawers shut. Take these other things in an equally matter of-fact manner. Prepare, then go on to other interests. A little common sense is better than a lot of hand-wringing.

Wishful Thinking About Tires

CIVILIANS who believe the artificial rubber program will provide the nation with tires are probably victims of wishful thinking. Best guess is that there will be no civilian rubber whatsoever for the duration of the war—all that can be made or produced will be needed for military purposes.

It is forecast that 35 per cent of America's cars will be off the roads in a year—and that two-thirds will be through in two or three years.

Former isolationists are disturbed by the thought that defeat of Great Britain, Russia and China would leave us isolated.

It is now being confidently announced that the Japs should soon be getting ready for a "surprise."

Japs' No. 1 Anti-Axis Militarist

—By JAMES R. YOUNG

Following is an interesting, personalized story on Gen. Masaharu Homma, reported to have committed suicide in the Philippines because his troops have been beaten again and again by Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The article is by James R. Young, for 13 years chief of the International News Service Bureau in Tokyo.

(Written Expressly for International News Service)

IF GEN. DOUGLAS M'ARTHUR'S headquarters confirm the hari-kari of Lieut. Gen. Masaharu Homma, Japan has lost her No. 1 anti-Axis militarist.

Homma was leader of the one time pro-British bloc of the Japanese army, a minority group which often warned the imperial family of Nazi machinations.

Two months ago a Japanese officer of the same rank, commanding the third unsuccessful attempt to capture Changsha, committed suicide.

Three weeks ago, one of Japan's notorious Axis backstabbing diplomats fell out of a window in Paris. He was Satomatsu Kato, Japanese "ambassador" to France, the man who sold Indo-China to Japan. Kato's death from a window fall followed the visit to Paris of a Nazi gauleiter.

Six months ago, Japan's walrus-mustached Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, in disfavor with some of the five military factions of the Japanese army, was shot twice. Hiranuma would have done a Hess and flown to China if he had known the operations of an airplane.

GEN. HOMMA, whom I knew as well as any Japanese officer, was comander of the imperial expeditionary force at Tientsin, China. I obtained his [illegible]t foreign correspondent interview on Dec. 29, 1939. He elaborated in his Oxford accent why it was impossible for Japan to successfully occupy and economically develop China. He conceded the atrocities attributed to the Japanese army. He said the officers had been powerless.

The general is (or was) one of the few Japanese officers educated and trained in England. The army has been predominantly German drilled and controlled. Homma, at Tientsin, had the unpleasant task of enforcing the electrically charged barbed wire barricade of the city.

Gen. Homma accompanied the emperor's brother, Prince Chichibu, to the British coronation. When military cliques in North China were torn by wrangling and jealousy, the prince had his royal aide, who [illegible]s (or was) judicious and fair in handling disputes, appointed as military arbitrator. Shortly after, as retaliation, an attempt was made to assassinate the prince's father-in-law, Baron Tsuneo Matsudaira, by planting sticks of dynamite in his car.

The murder trap was one of numerous attempts by the army to rid Japan of any civilian influence and of any persons believed favorable to better relation with the United States and Great Britain. Gen. Homma's position was untenable. He returned to Japan and was put on the shelf.

JAPAN'S military book of rules called for capture of the Philippines in four weeks. Homma's men have met disaster in their 14-week-old campaign against MacArthur's numerically inferior troops. Homma evidently underestimated the enemy or had been pushed into a tough job and could not deliver the islands on schedule. The Germans, last July had assured the Japs that Moscow and Manila could be taken by Christmas.

Homma liked golf. He spoke good English. He wore selected Scotch tweeds. He preferred Scotch to sake (rice wine). He enjoyed the companionship and conversation of British and Americans. He smoked British cigarettes. His interviews were trustworthy. He knew that Japan would never win a battle against a major power over any long term period. He counseled security through home defense. He was anti-Russian, but not anti-Chinese.

I think I knew Lieut. Gen. Homma quite well. A Japanese judge gave me one month in prison for having quoted Gen. Homma that Japan could not defeat China.

Perhaps Gen. Homma in his Manila hotel suite decided his army could not defeat MacArthur's forces and the man from Tokyo took the honorable Japanese way out of a predicament.

Emergency Spurs First Aid Training.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE training of laymen in first aid was begun by the American Red Cross in 1910 and in the present emergency a great increase in the number of applicants for training will occur.

"First aid is the immediate and temporary care given by trained persons in case of accidents before the physician takes charge" is the definition given by the American Red Cross manual.

In the United States each day, without the addition of war or bombings and plague outbreaks, there are 24,000 accidents. If every one of these were attended by a physician from the beginning, about one out of seven physicians would administer first aid every day. This, of course, is quite impossible for many reasons and the great majority of accident victims must receive their first aid care from layman until the services of a physician can be obtained.

As a matter of fact, this is probably a good thing, provided the layman has had a Red Cross course in first aid, because very often it is possible that a layman can teach a doctor a very great many valuable tricks in first aid, provided the doctor is not too superior to learn.

"Trained laymen," writes Dr. William Feggio, of Boston, "know how to use a Keller-Blake leg splint, or a notched board or rake as substitutes, and how to apply fixed traction for safer transportation of the victim. Many physicians do not even know what a Keller-Blake splint is, much less how to apply one, and even less how to improvise or use substitutes."

First Aid Optional.

The American College of Surgeons found in 1940 that not a dozen medical schools taught anything about first aid, except for the application of emergency splinting as part of fracture instruction. In half of these schools, attending a course in first aid is optional for the students.

Now first aid is really getting to be a technical subject and should not be left to the chance that a graduate physician will be able to apply the knowledge he has gained from a course in surgery when confronted with an emergency.

In many communities, but not in all, police and fire departments have their men trained in first aid and many large industrial concerns have such courses and eventually, no doubt, all employes will be trained in first aid.

This knowledge is part of the education that every human being in the present world should have just as he studies reading, writing and arithmetic, and if the present emergency increases the interest in the subject, it will be something to its credit after all.

Timely Editorial

Commandos at Work.

The British seem to have developed a "war of nerves" technique of their own through the use of a special corps of daring adventurers called commandos. These hand-picked men make swift invasions into enemy territory, where they start fires, blow up military stores, disrupt communication and even take prisoners.

They have made raids from Libya to Norway, and even the French coast, bristling with guns, has frequently felt the midnight stab of these daring raiders. Most spectacular, perhaps, was their recent parachute-born raid on France, in which they wrecked a Nazi radio station.

Such raids serve to annoy and harass the enemy in addition to doing considerable damage. They call for a special, daring, self-reliant type of individual.—Ohio State Journal.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

RFC Built On Run-Around System, Jesse Jones Holds Titanic Power

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

The authors of The Washington Merry-Go-Round, believing that the president should be consistent with his 1937 campaign of retiring elderly judges from the Supreme Court, have written a series of articles on the "Four Old Men" who hold vital war jobs in the Roosevelt cabinet—Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Navy Knox and Secretary of Commerce Jones—all around 70. Herewith is the last of the series, an appraisal of Jesse Jones.

WASHINGTON—For half a century Jesse Jones' life was dominated by things political, and having now reached his 68th year, it is not easy for him to change.

Few people realize how political is the machinery which ground out the loans of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. All its officials were trained to be political. When the average applicant, often accompanied by his congressman, asked for a loan, a regular system was developed for giving him the run-around. Letters were written back and forth for weeks and months.

This was studied and deliberate. A definite run-around technique was evolved. Apparently Jesse Jones thought it was his function to lend as little as possible—to discourage everything except gilt-edged loans.

And having spent years developing this technique, it is almost impossible for Jesse Jones and his organization to reverse themselves overnight. That is why, when loans are desperately needed for certain war plants, Jesse Jones and his loan boys continue on their blase, unperturbed way, still passing out the royal run-around.

Jesse Jones just isn't geared for quick-moving, streamlined finance. Yet as federal loan administrator he has the power of financial life or death over vital war plants.

Texas Politics.

FOR INSTANCE, no metal is more urgently needed today than tin. And yet, even two years ago, the state department, the defense commission and even the columnists knew there was grave risk that the Dutch East Indies might be taken, and that we should safeguard our future tin supply. All during the summer of 1940, in fact, the state department dinned at Jesse Jones to set up a tin smelter inside the United States to handle tin from Bolivia. But Jesse did nothing.

Six months passed; nine months; almost a year. Jesse had agreed by this time that a smelter should be built, but sent an investigator to determine where it should be located. This took several weeks more.

Finally, at long last, the loan administrator made his decision. He decided to put the plant just outside his own home town of Houston, Texas. Jesse, it seems, had been political to the very end.

Note: Nobody really minded Jesse's being political as much as they objected to the waste of time.

Jesse Has Friends.

OF COURSE, if you happen to know the federal loan administrator personally and pleasantly, loans sometimes move a lot faster. The bright boys around Jesse still remember the time they had turned down a loan to O. P. Van Sweringen, famous financier of the Chesapeake and Ohio Nickel Plate, and Erie railroads. Although the loan was vetoed, Van Sweringen was smart enough to find out the number of Jesse's drawing room on a trip to Florida and bought a ticket for the one adjacent. Next day, Jesse wired to the RFC in Washington to give Van Sweringen the loan.

Then there was the case of the Cretona silk mills near Paterson, N. J., whose application for a loan was refused by the RFC New York office. Then the very charming and highly social Count Ponirtovsky intervened. The loan came through. The mills are now in receivership.

In fact the files of the RFC have a long list of "favored loans," disapproved locally but granted later on Jesse Jones's OK in Washington.

Vital Troopships.

IN CONTRAST John W. Snyder, vice president of the Defense Plant Corporation and one of Jesse's right hand men, recently telephoned the Maritime Commission demanding that it take over about $50,000,000 worth of loans extended to General Electric, Westinghouse, et al, for constructing gears and turbines for vitally needed ships. Despite considerable argument, Snyder got nowhere with the Maritime Commission, which maintained that he, not the Maritime Commission, was running a loan agency, and should continue the loan on his books. Finally Snyder said:

"If you don't take this over, we'll hold up any further disbursements."

"And if you do," was the reply, "you'll hold up troopships which the president wants almost more than anything else. Just figure out whether you want congress to hear about that."

Mr. Snyder changed the subject.

Dog In Manger.

TRAGEDY is that Jesse Jones seems bent on keeping all his tremendous financial power in his own two hands. Not only does he not readily delegate responsibility, but he is terrifically jealous of any other agency which might encroach on his loan field.

Senator Murray of Montana wants to set up a separate fund of about $100,000,000 to lend money to little business to finance war jobs; but Jesse doesn't want it.

Also Marriner Eccles, governor of the federal reserve board, wants congress to let him put out the $140,000,000 which he got through devaluation of the dollar, for short, quick loans.

But, to head off Eccles and Murray, Jesse has wired his field representatives that they are now empowered to make loans up to $100,000 without approval of Washington. This liberalization of his loan policy is a drastic step for Jesse. But apparently he was determined to beat Eccles and Murray to the punch.

This has turned out to be something of a help to Jesse. For when his man Sterling Foster meets with the army and navy every Wednesday, and they cross-question him on loans, the stock reply is very simple—namely, that these loans are now made by district RFC offices and the federal loan administrator knows nothing about them.

It takes a lot to get around Jesse Jones. But it takes even more to budge him in his zealously guarded field of high finance.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Yesterday between 1 p. m. and 1:43 p. m. Eddie Cantor got out of bed, pulled a dressing gown over his red figured pajamas, downed a goblet of citrus juice, knocked over three poached eggs, toast, coffee, hot cereal, confirmed an appointment with Edward G. Robinson, conferred with his managers, made a date to rehearse a new song, discussed the sale of naval relief tickets, commented on the news, defined the missions of actors, especially comedians, in war time, and submitted to an interview—all in 43 minutes.

The man with the Wednesday radio show and the Musical Comedy hit, "Banjo Eyes," on Broadway, did all this easily and unhurriedly, as though he himself were a machine equipped with push-button station changers. You know how they work. If you push a new button, you get a new tune.

I PUSHED a button marked "Jack Benny":

"A very swell guy. A very liberal guy. Not long ago I sent him a telegram, asking for money for some refugee kids. He wired back, 'Dear Eddie, I got your wire but I was disappointed. You didn't ask for half enough . . And he doubled the request . . . Jack Benny is a very swell guy, a very liberal guy, and a very great comedian."

I pushed a button marked, "Actors in War Time."

"I'm going to see Eddie Robinson in a little while. Next to Cary Grant and one or two others he's given more money and time to the USO than anybody else. On one occasion he gave a hundred thousand dollars, and you know how he explained his reasons for doing it? He said, 'This is a small down payment on the privilege of being an American.' Cary Grant has given enormous sums of money to the war effort. Melvyn Douglas has done the best, the most constructive job of anybody in Hollywood."

I PUSHED a button that asked, "What About Melvyn Douglas?"

"Once upon a time, in California, there was a fruit growers' strike. Melvyn Douglas committed the crime of donating a sum of money to the children of these strikers, so that the little children wouldn't starve. That's why they call him a Pink, a Communist. If you feed a hungry child, you're a Communist. Some people can't forget that their ancestors once went on witch hunts and burned innocent people at the stake."

I glanced at the clock. I knew that between then and midnight Eddie Cantor had rehearsals to give, tickets for the naval relief to sell, a dinner appointment, a conference with his three radio writers, a show to do, another conference with his sponsors, make-up to put on, costumes to change, cross-town jaunts in taxicabs to take. . . . But he seemed as casual as a sailor under a palm tree on a desert isle.

A Farmer's Diary

Punishment

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

MY FRIEND, psychologist Dr. Garry Myers, who writes a column on child training, keeps repeating a fact that I have always thought well founded. He says that small children must occasionally be spanked, but to do it immediately, when necessary, so that the child associates the punishment with the misdemeanor.

We have an eight-day alarm clock that, for lack of a better place, we keep atop the piano in the living room. When it was new, it was a useful bit of furnishing, which I—who used it most—found helpful. It jingled loud enough, but not too loud. It did not need to be wound every night, but only once a week.

But one day it got a fall. I had a jeweler repair it—thereby increasing our investment in early rising. I registered a warning as I carefully set it back in its accustomed place. "Now let's all be careful not to do that again."

The other day the second boy let a marble fall and it rolled beneath the piano. Forthwith, with the idea of reclaiming his lost treasure, he grabbed a corner of the musical instrument and made a lusty, though ineffectual attempt to budge it. He is a husky, headlong six-year-old and the yank set the alarm clock careening again, so that it rolled and fell with a resounding jingling crash. I was standing near, and—following Dr. Myers' advice without conscious effort—I grabbed him with my left hand and drew back my right for an impressive smack on the seat of the pants.

Instinctively, to break the force of the spanking, he put both hands behind him. In one hand, he happened to have a sharp lead pencil. The pencil point broke off in the palm of my hand.

It is hard to tell who felt worse about it. The sight of the purplish wound, already beginning to bleed, registered immediately on the consciousness of our entire family. . . .

Passing over sordid details, here are the high spots. After ten days, here I am with that hand still in an antiseptic hoist. I had two visits to a doctor, two probings, and three days of sulfanilimide tablets—which cured the infection but left me so groggy that for a long time I could not even lie straight in bed.

To cap the climax every friend I met, after expressing pity, asked how I had done it. Those to whom I confidentially disclosed the truth, grinned from ear to ear. There are times when it's pretty hard to be a truthful columnist and a conscientious family man.

OHIO LEGENDS TOLD AT MEETING OF CLUB

Miss Lois MacKellar Gives Interesting Talk on Early Ohio Pioneers and Indians at Meeting of Victorian Club.

COLORFUL LEGENDS of the early days of Ohio and the Indians and pioneers that settled here were interestingly told by Miss Lois MacKellar at the meeting of the Victorian club held Monday in the Park Avenue Baptist church. Miss MacKellar told the group that although there are many Indian legends few of them are of Ohio Indians as the pioneers who settled here were unwilling to listen to their stories.

One popular legend of the Ohio Indians that is told is "The Island of the Blessed" which is sometimes called "The Hunter's Dream." The story is of an Indian Brave who was in love with an Indian maiden who died before they could be married. Before her death he had always had the ambition of being the leader of his people. After her death he had no interest in life.

He learned, also through a legend of that day, that somewhere there was a land where there was no war and everything was peaceful. He decided that he would make it his goal to find this land and live in peace. He traveled for days and finally came to a large gate. The gate keeper told him if he wanted to enter this land of freedom he would have to leave his bow and arrow outside. He did so and when inside met the girl he loved before her death. They spent many happy days together.

One day a voice came to him and told him he would have to leave and return to his people because he was destined to lead them in a great struggle. It also assured him that when he did this and returned to the land where there was no death, no tears and no war, the girl he loved would be waiting for him. He then awakened and found it was only a dream but he was then determined to become the leader of his people, always remembering that some day he would be in the land of happiness.

Miss MacKellar also told one of the stories of the life of Mike Fink, fictional character who was called "King of the Steamboat Men." This story can be found in the Crockett Almanac which was written in 1842 by David Crockett. The story was told in dialect. Mrs. J. L. Stevens gave a talk on the importance of purchasing defense bonds and stamps.

Mrs. Roscoe Gage was hostess for the meeting. Tea was served from a long table centered with an arrangement of Talisman roses. Mrs. W. M. Layton and Mrs. Alice P. Jennings presided at the table. Mrs. Paul F. Cropper is hostess for the next meeting of the club which will be held March 23 at the Women's Club.

Husband Drinks to Excess

My problem is a very serious one to me. I've been married only a year and am deeply in love with my husband. He has one terrible habit which I'm trying to break him of, but don't have much luck. We're both employed, and very often when I come home I find everything in disorder and my husband asleep in a drunken stupor.

I try to please him in every way, but if he keeps this up, I'm afraid my love will turn to hate. When he gets sober he begs my forgiveness, and because I love him so much, I forgive him, but I wish I could do something about this drinking. Please help me.

MILDRED

It's very hard to break a man of the habit of excessive drinking. It takes lots of character and willpower. In your place I'd tell him just as you have told me, that you are becoming disgusted and that you're afraid your love will turn to hatred. This may induce him to quit drinking.

If you'll send me a self-addressed, three-cent stamped envelope, I will send you the name and address of an organization which claims to have done wonders with alcoholics in affecting a cure.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

The other day my mother sent me a clipping from your column in which you defended service men from the sharks who overcharge us because we're in uniform. Please keep on telling readers how rotten it is to hold up a guy just because he's defending his country.

BUCK PRIVATE

In the same mail I get another letter from a soldier who tells me that he was charged 25 cents for a bottled soft drink that usually sells for five cents.

Another one tells of being charged a quarter for a hamburger and bun, advertised on the outside of an eating place at ten cents. When he protested, the proprietor said: "No rough stuff from you or any of the rest of you because you're wearing a uniform."

If soldiers will tell me the names, street and number and places in which they've been subjected to this type of robbery, I'll be very glad to take it up with the war department.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm 29 years old and in love with a girl of 19. I've been courting this girl for 13 months and we had but one argument in all that time.

I always gave her anything she wished for, when I had it. She has been angry with me for the past three weeks, during which time she has been going with a soldier — a married man, who claims to be getting a divorce. She wrote me that she is through with him now that his furlough is over, and asked me for a certain sum of money. I don't believe that she's through with him, but is waiting until he gets his divorce.

Miss Fairfax, shall I forget her or think it over and wait? I love her, and her parents have always been very nice to me, and my parents like the girl. It's hard to forget her. Shall I trust her?

J B K.

Things you tell me about this young lady do not sound to me as if she'd make a good wife. Even if she intends to give the money to the soldier, he'll have a pretty difficult time getting a divorce. Frankly, I don't believe he wants a divorce. A uniform doesn't make a saint out of a man, though it frequently makes a hero. He's probably just stringing this girl along.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My son is a senior at college and he writes me that he has applied for a commission in the marine corps reserves. This was a shock to me. Please don't think I'm lacking in patriotism as I have two sons serving in the army at the present time, but as this boy has been sent to college at considerable expense and sacrifice on my part, I should like to see him graduated before he enlists.

Senior's Mother

Twenty-five boys were selected the other day for officers' training at Quantico, the marine post near Washington, but they will complete their college courses before going on active duty. The marine corps is signing up four thousand such second lieutenants all over the United States.

"The Authority on Authorities"

FORESIGHT PAYS BETTER

Along late in the play of a hand, you see that you could pick up another trick or so if you only had another re-entry to your own hand or the dummy. The difference, if you could have the lead placed right, might mean the making of an otherwise defeated contract. Doesn't it burn you up, then, if you are able to look back and recall some stage at which you could have manufactured an entry by merely playing an unnessarily high card from the hand which has wound up with the lead?

After West led the spade 3, East putting on the J, South had trouble to count up nine probable winners. If he took that trick with the K, he might also get three diamond tricks if the suit broke 3-2 with the defenders, plus three hearts if West had the Q, plus one club. But he could not build the needed additional trick in clubs before the opponents had him set with three spades, a diamond and a club. He did not see the other one possibilty of a ninth trick, in a fourth heart, so carelessly spilled his apple cart.

After the spade K won, he took the diamond tops and led a third one, playing low from dummy on all three tricks. Right there he beat himself. East followed up the diamond Q with a lead of the spade 7, and three tricks went there to the defense. West then led his club K to the A. With no entry to his own hand, all that South could do was collect the diamond 9 and the heart A and K, then give up the last two tricks to West, being down two.

If on the diamond tricks he had played the 9, 8 and 5 from he dummy, the 2 would have remained there as an exit to his hand. After winning the club A later, he could have used the diamond 6 as a re-entry to try the heart finesse. When it worked, he could have dropped the Q, and the 7 would have been high enough to beat East's best card for the game trick.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 11.

Although this may be a particularly active day, with many things of importance moving at high tempo, yet there are all sorts of difficulties, delays, obstructions, disturbances or distresses to cope with. The impulses and energies may be ready to attack such problems but the mind may be confused or perplexed or depressed.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for an active and seemingly productive year, with the energies, impulses and creative abilities ready to inaugurate new or important projects of promising scope. But there may arise obstructions, delays, fears, and many difficulties which depress and lower the initiative and purpose.

A child born on this day should have much constructive ability, energy and ambition but may be subject to depressions, obstacles and mental gloom which may undermine their purpose and incite enmity from elders.

Fish High In Food Values

Fish, they tell us, is one of the most economical and nutritious foods we can eat. Train Child To Create; Not Destroy

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Some parents suppose it is a mark of high intelligence when a child, say from four to 10, wants to take apart every toy and plaything. Indeed, some parents will encourage the child in such explorations.

These parents should know that a backward child might also want to take apart almost anything he can lay his hands on; that while taking it apart may add somewhat to the child's useful fund of skills and knowledge, it will also add far more to his tendency to destroy and to grow more scatterbrained.

Character Values.

Let us remember that the best education for character and citizenship comes from construction, not from destruction; from putting things together rather than tearing them apart. For any one of us to profit much from taking anything apart, we must first know how to put it together. Destruction can be useful only as it is aided by construction. However, without proper guidance, destruction will come first.

A good, simple rule is not to allow a child to take apart a toy until you are very sure he can put it together intact. Fortunately, there are available some good sets of toys suited to various ages, which are designed to encourage construction.

Bad Experience.

You know how tempted the parent or older child is to amuse the baby of one or two years by building up blocks or pans for him to knock down. How the tyke will chuckle as they go toppling down and the more so if their falling makes a great noise. Yet this is possibly the worst experience for this baby. What he needs is constant patient guidance at learning to build up blocks as high as possible without letting them topple.

After spending many hours with one of our children when he was about 14 months of age, to encourage him to build, I found it was not long before he was making great progress in carefulness.

Although before I mistakenly had built towers for him to knock down, there soon came a time when he would not push over a tower of blocks even when I asked him to do so, especially after he had builded it. Instead, he implored me to leave it standing and when he feared it might fall, he took it down carefully, one block at a time. In this way he learned to find great enjoyment from construction.

While the creative attitude, the very opposite of destruction might not carry over to all sorts of other behavior, it could be made to carry over in many. At least it is surely in the right direction.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

"The armored car will be drawn up just around the corner from the hideaway," my father said in a low voice as the taxi driver, released from further tacking, let out his car in a burst of speedy, efficient driving.

"I gave the address in code to Watson when I told him to flag the car and keep it away from the hotel," my father went on, "but I added a few letters which told the driver at which corner he was a draw up.

"We'll take our time in getting out," my father added. "And we'll start away from our own car, walking slowly until the taxi man is out of sight. You can be sure that my men in the armored car will be watching—and guarding our every movement.

"As soon as this driver is out of sight we will turn and get into the armored car as quickly as possible. Then you will be able to begin your journey free from espionage. I think we have successfully shaken off Stephen Redfield or any of his henchmen."

"Are you traveling with me?" I asked.

"I thought you understood," he said, "that you will have to go up there alone, except for the men in the car who will be at your command."

"But what about you?" I demanded. "How are you going to get back to the hotel?"

His look at me was speculative. "Ordinarily," he said, "I would take the nearest taxi back from here. But as this car, angling north to the East Side highway, will come within two blocks of the hotel, I will get out at a nearby corner and take a taxi back from there."

"I'll agree to that on one condition," I said firmly. "You must take one of the men with you in the taxi. Otherwise, I shall put on a sit-down strike."

I laughed nervously as I caught his hand in mine.

"Can't you understand, Father?" I said, "that I cannot possibly put my mind wholly on the task you have given me when I am torn with anxiety about your safety?"

"You are an excellent special pleader," he said. So good, in fact, that I shall yield the point. I will take a man back with me and will use a car of our own. Does that satisfy you?"

"Perfectly," I told him. "And thank you for humoring me."

"We are nearing the place," he said. "Let us watch carefully."

That meant, I knew, that I was not to speak again until he did, and I kept a silent vigil from my side of the car until we reached the corner he had mentioned. Then he rapped on the glass back of the driver, and when the man had lowered the glass he spoke incisively

"I'm sorry, but I gave you the wrong address This is the street I want. Don't bother to turn in. We'll get out here"

"Okay!" the driver said, drawing up to the curb and getting down to open the door.

My father paid him with a liberal tip, yet not large enough to arouse suspicion or comment. Then he began to walk with me away from the armored car, which a quick glance showed me was drawn up at the corner.

The taxi went swiftly by us and my father watched it intently.

"He's headed back uptown," he said. "I was afraid he might take a notion to drive past the address of the hideaway, which I inadvertently gave him."

He was walking so swiftly that I almost had to run. Then we were in the armored car, manned by two men and a driver, and my father spoke briskly.

"We'll need another man," he said. "Who is left in the place?"

"Gus and Briggs," one of the men told him.

"Tell Briggs to carry on there, and have Gus come here," my father said. "Tell him to be ready to stay the night if necessary."

Try This Old Home-Mixed Cough Relief. Surprising!

Child Could Make It. No Cooking. Big Saving.

You may not know it, but, in your own kitchen, and in just a moment, you can easily prepare a really surprising relief for coughs due to colds. It's old-fashioned—your mother probably used it—but for real results, it can't be beaten.

First, make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar and one cup of water a few moments, until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all.

Then get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. This is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for prompt action in throat and bronchial irritations.

Put the Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. Thus you make a full pint of really splendid cough syrup, and you get about four times as much for your money. It never spoils, and children love its pleasant taste.

And for quick relief, it's a wonder. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, eases the soreness, makes breathing easy, and lets you get restful sleep. Just try it, and if not pleased, your money will be refunded.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

The last time I saw big "Red" Hughes, about three weeks ago, the giant redhead took the occasion to register a mild beef.

"I wish," says he, "for the sake of us old timers, that you would quit talking about Red Murphy as an old-time Mansfield high basketball star, and start telling us about Tim Murphy instead. The guy's name was Tim."

"That I should have remembered," I told him. "And the next time the occasion arises to discuss the great old-timers, I'll certainly put in a plug for Tim Murphy."

The occasion never arose, and last Thursday night they found big Red Hughes dead in bed in his room at the Court hotel, a victim of heart disease.

They tell some fabulous tales about Red Hughes' feats on the football field and basketball court at Mansfield high school way back in 1910, and later at Ohio Wesleyan.

But the best one I've heard happened years and years later, in fact not so many years ago. Bill Keefe, the whistle blowing man, tells it.

Seems Bill and Sam Tracy were working a football game at Bellville, and having a very bad day, particularly with the sideline throng.

After numerous arguments with players, coaches and crowd, the crowd came on the field to protest en masse against one decision. Bill and Sam were caught in the middle, with never a friendly face to give them encouragement.

Then through the mob, elbowing his way, came big Red Hughes, followed by another Mansfielder almost as big.

* * *

And then, like Napoleon "on that storming day, you know the way, feet far apart, neck outstretched," and eyes flashing fire, stood big Red, all 300 pounds and more of him.

"If you guys want a fight, let's get started," he thundered.

"The enemy," Keefe relates, "retired to a prepared position along the sideline."

Youngster Gets Hot In A.B.C.

Ashtabula Blacksmith Gets Game of 277.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—A 21-year-old freshman in the American Bowling Congress tournament gave the veterans something to talk about—and shoot at—today.

John DiMare, a railroad blacksmith from Ashtabula, O., started his singles yesterday with a split and then pitched nine straight strikes for a total of 277, tying the high game of the 1942 tourney.

He rolled 180 each in his next two games to pile up 637 in the singles event. Earlier in the doubles he rolled 630, which gave him 1267 or a 210 average for six games yesterday.

He and Tony Steffanelli, also of Ashtabula, knocked down 1186 pins in the doubles, and took seventh place in the standings.

By a fortunate break DiMare will get a crack at the all-events prize fund. He wasn't scheduled to bowl in the five-man event, but long after the entries closed he found an opening with an Ashtabula team. Now he has to roll only an additional 533 to climb into that select 1800 circle. A 633 series is much to expect, but it would put him in good shape. First in that event now is 1830 by Howard Dammel of Cincinnati.

While DiMare was bowling, John DiFloria, a 23-year-old truck driver of Buffalo, N. Y., took over third in the singles with 679 on games of 210-245-224. Vincent Gries of Paterson, N. J., leads the singles on 690.

* * *

In the doubles James Marshall and Howard Vautherot of Detroit hit 1218 with a 460 in the middle to move into second place. Third in the doubles now are Rollie Bickel and Howard Dembufsky of Goshen, Ind., with 1209. Bert Stanger and Edmund Westbrook of St. Louis are first with 1219.

The five-man event still is topped by the 2790 of the Simmons Industrials of Elizabeth, New Jersey.

Big Ten Hits Dizzy Pace

Point-a-Minute Teams Become Rule In Loop.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Big Ten basketball teams hit the dizziest scoring pace in the conference's 37-year history during the 1942 campaign, a check of the league's point-making activities showed today.

* * *

Where "point-a-minute" teams once were a rarity in the Western conference, they became the rule during the past season. Eight of the conference cage combinations hit that high mark. The only failures were Michigan with a 38.4 point per game average and the hapless University of Chicago quintet with a meager 32 points per contest.

The team with the best per game average was Iowa, which finished in a three-way tie for second place. The Hawks scored 721 points in 15 loop encounters for an average of 48 per contest. The championship University of Illinois outfit ranked sixth on a basis of offensive averages with a mark of 46.2 points a game.

Basketball's trend toward "all offense" also was reflected in the defensive records of conference teams. Purdue, coached by the veteran "Piggy" Lambert, who still believes guards have a place in the game, compiled the best seasonal defensive rating. The Boilermakers granted their foes an average of 35.8 points per game. Illinois was second with 37.8 points per game scored against it.

For the entire season an average of 84.7 points per game were scored by the competing combinations. This was a five-points boost over a season ago and a 40 per cent increase over a 10 year period.

Naturally the higher team totals has been reflected in the individual records. Johnny Kotz of Wisconsin set a new all-time mark of 242 points in conference play this season and 22 players scored 100 or more points.

FRITZIE CLINGS TO TOP FISTIC LADDER

PITTSBURGH — (INS) — Fritzie Zivic's familiar left hook lashed out as of old and today the former welterweight champion found himself still on the fistic ladder by reason of a technical knockout over Izzy Jannazzo of New York.

With his ring career depending on the outcome of the fight, Zivic battered Jannazzo so badly that Referee Al Grayber stopped the bout at the request of the New Yorker's manager, Chris Dundee, at the end of the fourth round.

Teachers Tie Legion Quint

Brig Young Once More Leads Loop With 643.

Schoolmasters rolled into a tie with American Legion for first place by taking a 3-0 victory over Commercial Managers last night at Colony alleys while the Legion was dropping a 1-2 decision to Richman's.

But Brig Young, the "grand old man" of the Legion quintet, again took top scoring honors for the league with a 643 total on games of 226-203-214.

George Gump and Jake Mayer each turned in series of 605. Jake Mayer marked up high game of 247, while Elzie Whitcomb chalked up a high game of 234, and this, together with Brig's 226 and a 207 by Smith gave the Legion a 1009 game.

Rice And Dodds Set New Records

WASHINGTON—(INS)— Barrel-Chester Gregory Rice today placed another trophy among his collection that is spreading so much it may warrant a warning from Leo Henderson for hoarding metal.

The latest award received by the great former Notre Dame star is the touchdown club's trophy for pounding to a new world's indoor 2½ mile record in the feature race of last night's ninth annual Catholic University games.

Forging another link in the greatest victory chain in track's history, Rice finished in 11 minutes, 32.6 seconds, clipping almost seven full seconds off his own record of 11:39.5 established last year.

Four other meet records were set:

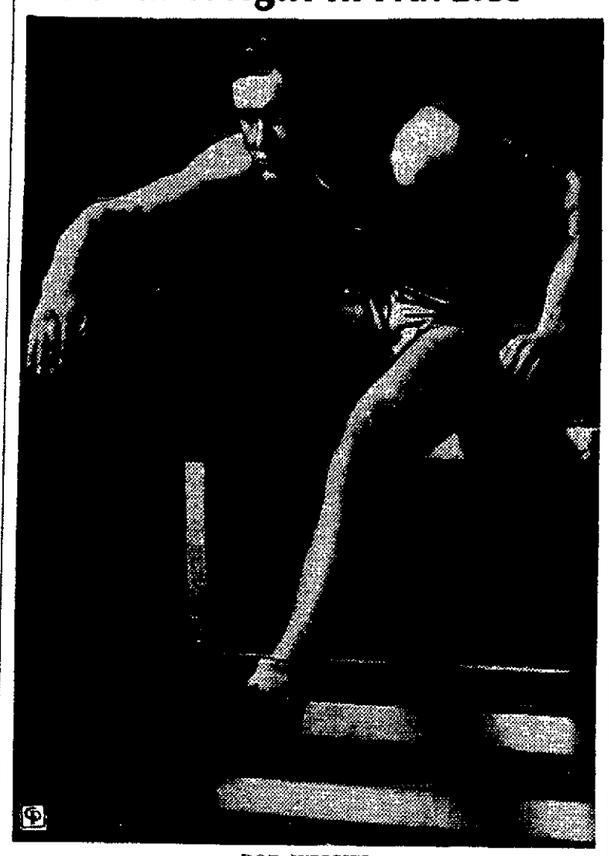
Gil Dodds, former Ashland (O.) college star now of the Boston AA, won the mile in 4:15.7; Johnny Doyle, Catholic U., won the collegiate mile in 4:43.3; Al Blozis, Georgetown's world's champion shot putter, tossed the 16-pound weight 55 feet, 4½ inches, 20 inches shy of his world mark, and M. Crawford took the pole vault at 12 feet; 9¼ inches.

Navy track and field stars ran up a total of 40 points to take the team trophy.

Fight Results

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa.—Andy (Tarzan) Roy, 169¾, Wheeling, W. Va., and Tony Cisco, 170½, Norristown, Pa., drew (8).

He's All Wright In Hurdles



BOB WRIGHT

You're going to hear a lot about this gentleman from Ohio State university in the weeks to come. For Bob Wright, hurdler and dash man, is one of the outstanding track stars in the nation. Wright, a consistent winner last year as a sophomore, recently led the Bucks to their first Big Ten track title at Chicago. Wright won both hurdle events and added a third in the 60-yard dash. In the 70-yard high hurdles he holds the American record of 8.5 seconds. He recently set a new national mark of 7.8 seconds in the 70-yard low hurdles. Wright hails from Huntington, W. Va.

Old Fox Griffith Has Deal On Fire With Detroit Club

By JUDSON BAILEY

ORLANDO, Fla. —(AP)— Trade winds fanned hot and cold around the camp of the Washington Senators today with the Detroit Tigers still hoping to promote a deal that would get some of their problem children off their hands.

President Clark Griffith of the Senators said emphatically that he would not agree to give up his promising young first baseman, Jim (Mickey) Vernon, and veteran Pitcher Emil (Dutch) Leonard for Detroit's Louis (Buck) Newsom and Rudy York.

It was announced here last night that Leonard had ended his holdout by signing a 1942 Senator contract.

But the "Old Fox" never has been hesitant about changing his mind and a little shuffling of some other aspects of the deal, like throwing in an extra player or a considerable cash consideration, might easily sway the transaction.

There also was talk today that the Senators might have something in common with the Yankees, who would find either Vernon or Leonard useful, and besides they have become impatient with their holdout third baseman, Red Rolfe.

Washington would like to have Rolfe and also definitely is interested in Mike Chartak, the rookie outfielder of the Yanks.

Griffith and Manager Bucky Harris say they won't give up Vernon, who batter .299 last year.

York would give the Senators much-needed righthanded batting power and Newsom might conceivably win as many games next season as Leonard. They are a couple of temperamental headaches for any manager and because of their prolonged resistance to salary slashes, the Tigers are making no secret of their efforts to put through a trade. Detroit also has placed Catcher Billy Sullivan, another one of five holdouts, on the block.

General Manager Jack Zeller of the Tigers conferred with Griffith here yesterday and there were indications that they would continue their negotiations.

Detroit's general manager indicated that if the holdout hurler doesn't show up in camp soon and come to terms, his name probably will go on the next waiver list.

Stars Upset In Golf Tourney

Big-Name Players Go To Sidelines Early.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—The trickiest golf of all—best ball competition—robbed the Miami Biltmore's four ball tournament of its gallery-getters before the semi-finals were reached today.

Promoters were moaning over the startling upsets which put most of the big name players on the sidelines and left in the running only last year's winners and three sets of giant-killers.

In a tournament where every player bangs away at the cup, and courageous putters come to the fore, victims included Sammy Snead and Ralph Guldahl, Craig Wood and Billy Burke, Jimmy Demaret and Lawson Little, Clayton Heafner and Lloyd Mangrum, Byron Nelson and Henry Picard, Jimmy Thomson and Harry Cooper, Horton Smith and Paul Runyan.

Long putts decided the matches and they were dropping for the outsiders, and not the established stars.

In four ball golf, players gamble. They shoot boldly for the pin, secure in the knowledge that their partner will backstop them with a saving par. There is no necessity to stroke cautiously, as players must do when they want to be sure of the second putt if they miss the first.

The deluge of low-scoring here—13 eagles and 195 birdies in the first two rounds—resulted from teamwork.

Fighting it out for the jackpot was the team of Chandler Harper and Herman Keiser. Their opponents today were the 1941 winners—Ben Hogan and Gene Sarazen. In the other match Jack Grout and Ben Loving were paired against Jimmy Hines and Willie Goggin.

PRO TOURNAMENT REACHES SEMI-FINALS

CHICAGO — (INS) — The world's championship basketball tournament moved into its semi-final phase today with the Detroit Eagles, the Long Island Grumman Flyers, the Harlem Globe Trotters and the Oshkosh All-Stars as the surviving contestants.

The defending champion Detroit Eagles will hook up tonight with the Grummans and the Oshkosh team will meet the Globe Trotters.

NOW THEY'RE SORRY

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP)—The New York Yankees broke a tradition of 20 years standing in meeting a member of the American league in a spring exhibition contest yesterday. Now they wish they hadn't. Washington won, 9 to 2.

ROOKIE GETS CHANCE ON HANDLEY INJURY

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—(AP)—The possibility that Lee Handley's major league baseball for Pittsburgh rookie Eddie Leip, for Pittsburgh rookieEddie Leip, second baseman last year with Albany.

Leip was slated for return to the minors until it developed that Handley was unable to throw a ball across the diamond following an automobile accident last winter. He has been sent to Los Angeles for an examination.

Stu Holcomb Named Grid Coach Of Miami Redskins

OXFORD — (U.P.) — Stuart Holcomb, football coach at Washington & Jefferson college and former Ohio State gridiron captain, was named head football coach at Miami university today.

Holcomb succeeds Frank Wilton, for 10 years head football coach at Miami. Wilton resigned last Dec. 18 after several mediocre football seasons.

Since graduation from Ohio State, Holcomb successively has held football coaching positions at Findlay college, Muskingum college and Washington & Jefferson. At Ohio State he played both halfback and fulback and captained the 1931 team.

Holcomb's appointment was announced by Athletic Director Merlin A. Ditmer of Miami, who said it was for "an indefinite term." The salary was not disclosed.

He will serve as both football and baseball coach, the positions Wilton held. Spring football practice will begin next Tuesday, with the new coach in charge. A new assistant to Holcomb will be announced within 24 hours.

Holcomb became coach and athletic director at Findlay college in 1932 and served there until 1935. His football teams there won two northwest Ohio championships in football, two in baseball and one in basketball.

At Muskingum, where he served as coach and athletic director, from 1936 to 1940, his 1939 football team won the Ohio conference title and his 1936 and 1937 basketball teams achieved that honor. Hit football team was conference runner-up once and his basketball teams three times.

* * *

He went to Washington & Jefferson at Washington, Pa., last year. His football team won the district championship and the track team, which he also coached, won a tri-state title.

Holcomb is a native of Lincoln, Neb. He gained notice as an outstanding athlete at Erie, Pa., where he attended high school.

At Ohio State, he was ranked as an exceptional student as well as an athlete. He was a member of the basketball and track teams. He was the muscular stocky type of athlete.

His quiet personality and his record both as coach and physical education administrator gained him recognition in those fields.

Heath Asks Too Much--Bradley

Tribe Prexy Says Jeff Expects Big Season.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Half of the Cleveland Indians' holdout list—Jeff Heath—is asking more money than President Alva Bradley is willing to talk about.

Heath, who was the Tribe's leading batter last season and won the 1941 most valuable player award of the Cleveland baseball writers, went into a huddle with Bradley for three hours yesterday but nothing came of the meeting.

Gerald Walker, Cleveland's only other holdout, is still at his home in Orlando, Fla., so far as Bradley has heard.

The club president said Heath was asking about 50 per cent more than the club's offer, which is believed to be about $12,000.

Heath kept quiet as to the details, but Bradley said "we got nowhere. Jeff thinks this is going to be a big year for baseball and his mind's made up to cash in on it. I hope he's right. But I'm afraid we're too far apart even to negotiate our differences."

TRIBE MEETS NATS

ORLANDO, Fla. — (AP) — For their first look of the season at an American league rival, the Cleveland Indians named Pitchers Harry Eisenstat, Chubby Dean and Tom Ferrick to oppose Washington. Hank Edwards, young outfielder, got a two-run triple in the fifth and a double in the crucial ninth as the Indians downed the Cardinals yesterday.

CHAPTER XXIII

Driving Judith to the station, Tim said, "Maybe I'm too sure. Maybe Emily has changed her mind."

"She hasn't changed her mind about you."

"I'm all jumpy inside and my thoughts are running over each other. I've got to buy her an engagement ring and a wedding ring . . . I wonder where she'd like to go on a honeymoon or where she'd like to live."

"She'd like a house of her own, I think."

"She'll have it. Do you think she'll want a fancy wedding?"

"She'll want it simple. She just wants you and not the trimmings of marriage. Keep her happy, Tim. Keep her happy."

He glanced at her sharply. "What about you? This idea of yours to go home."

She looked at the streets teeming with people. "They left, all the ones who mattered, left. Tell Emily this when you tell her I've gone home. Tell her that—that Max has gone."

"Max?"

"The reason why I stopped bringing work home with me in the evenings."

In the station Tim said, holding her hand, "I'm sorry it's turning out this way for you, Judith."

She smiled. "You think I'll go home and marry the village blacksmith? I'm not going to marry anybody. And as for you and Emily, I'm terribly happy for you both. It's one of those rare cases where love is mutual. I had begun to think that it never is. Good-bye and start heading West."

Everything was blurred after that—Tim's handsome face, the passing faces, the steps going down to the tracks, the inside of the train. She thought, "Tim has found his feelings. I wish I could lose mine."

The next day her mother called her to the telephone, saying, "It's long distance, dear." Judith stopped still in the center of her room, a hot flush coloring her face. Long distance? Max? She could not get to the telephone in the downstairs hall quickly enough.

But it was Phyllis. "Hello, Judith. I wanted to call you before you left but—but you know how it is. I simply couldn't believe it when Ames said you were going home."

Phyllis, curious and suspicious, was throwing out bait.

Judith's heart returned to normal. Hating the sickening disappointment because it wasn't Max, she said, "I think I'll be happier here now, Phyllis. I intend to be." Then she said, "Tim is on his way to ask Emily to marry him."

"Tim? Really?" Phyllis did not believe that Tim would marry Emily.

"Yes. He missed her and loved her more than he realized. So Emily will be coming back to New York with him. She deserves all of it."

Phyllis laughed softly. "Little Emily, our little Emily, catching Tim Stevens! Who'd have thought it? It's wonderful, of course . . . I'll get in touch with her. Oh, I almost forgot. . . . Fay Hathaway called me. Remember the attractive woman at my party?"

Did she remember Fay Hathaway? "Yes, I remember her."

"Well, she asked what had become of you. Your phone was disconnected. She said she liked you so much and wanted to see you again. Isn't she a lively person?"

She grasped the telephone tightly. "Is she—is she married?"

"Why, no. I don't think so. Why, was she planning to be married?"

"No, it's nothing. I thought perhaps she would be."

When the conversation ended, Judith returned to her room, closed the door and walked to the window. Max had not married Fay . . . No matter what had happened in Venezuela he had not married Fay. How strange it was to feel a little sorry that Fay must go into her eleventh year of waiting for Max to make up his mind to marry her. Sorry for Fay's sake . . . But to feel sorry was to think of Max as two men—the one she, Judith, loved, and the one Fay loved. Sorry and glad, all at the same time, and glad because Max was still free. He'd come back, Fay had said. He always came back. And somewhere in that series of tomorrow she, Judith, and Max would be together again. It was as if she'd been told. And on that day she would solve the enigma of Max who had said, "Doubt everything and everyone, if you must, but never doubt my love." She thought, "He bound me by his last words. Did he know that? He bound me because I shall never be released until I know what he meant. And perhaps he didn't mean anything at all."

A few days later she received a telegram from Emily. She and Tim were married and were going to California for six weeks.

Within a week she was working at Overton's under Ralph Field, a personable, amusing, capable young man who had been glad to add her to his staff. That same week she met Katherine Stoddard, Ralph's fiancee, an attractive, interesting, dark-haired girl who had studied and traveled widely and was now teaching in Clinton's best art school. Ralph and Katherine asked her to luncheon. They were all to become very good friends.

Stephen had resigned. Harriet had told her with a mixture of sadness and joy, the former because Stephen undoubtedly would be leaving Clinton, the latter because Larry, Harriet's husband, had been made Forbes' assistant and had been given a sorely needed increase in salary. And Judith thought, "Stephen won't call me again. He's proud and he's a young man without a job." She was touched and had a few moments concern over him since he had taken her into his confidence and she understood fully the reasons behind his resignation and remembered his great ambition. Would he cling to the latter despite discouragement and unemployment and a dwindling bank account? Would he achieve "the best" now? He came and went in her mind as all things came and went in her mind these days, all things except Max. Max remained stubbornly steadfast there, rooted with her memories of those three months into which she had so happily poured 'the best' of herself.

She was lunching alone in a hotel cafeteria one day when she saw Stephen carrying a tray, he stood still and smiled rather weakly, looking confused, embarrassed.

"Mind if I join you?" he said.

"Not at all. I hate eating alone."

He was still confused and embarrassed a few minutes later when she said gently, "We thought you had gone back to Baltimore, Stephen. But we didn't think you'd go without saying good-bye." She had to be kind to him and she wished she could think of something even kinder to say to take away his look of discouragement and hurt and shaken confidence.

"I wouldn't go away without saying good-bye to Harriet and Larry and—and you. I've been trying to get a job here." He shook his head. "No luck."

"Your bad luck was Larry's good break." Harriet had a maid three days a week now and a new coat of which she was touchingly proud.

He tried to smile. "I guess I'm too particular. How are you doing? I heard you were working at Overton's. I was surprised."

Were you?"

"I didn't think you'd ever leave New York."

"Stop being surprised at the things people do." She thought, "you're afraid, Stephen. Your confidence has been shaken and you're afraid. This can ruin you, cheat you out of everything you want and are capable of doing. Isn't there anyone to give you a pat on the back and tell you the things women tell men they love when the men are discouraged? Why doesn't your mother tell you?" She said, "They say you can't hold a good man down, Stephen. Harriet said that a man can be too smart for his job and that you were too smart for yours. You still want the best, don't you?"

He smiled. "Hadn't I had a few drinks when I said that?"

"Yes, but you meant it and you can still get it."

"You're so sure? You wouldn't kid me, would you?"

She shook her head.

"I have an appointment this afternoon with an executive who freezes you with one glance. Maybe I will take some of this coffee."

"That's much better. Don't let him know he's freezing you. Don't look too anxious for the job. I hate to rush off, but my time is up."

He rose with her. "If I get that job this afternoon, I'll call you. If I don't, I'll call you anyway—to say good-bye."

She walked away, not seeing the look of determination in his face. She forgot him the instant he was out of sight. Always, when she pulled on her glove, she felt that bracelet Max had given her.

She was wearing the bracelet that evening when Stephen called and said, trying to control the excitement in his voice, "Well, I landed that job."

"He didn't freeze you then?"

"Maybe it was the coffee. He was swell. Underneath all that dignity was a sense of humor. And it isn't a job. There's a chance to do some really creative, constructive work. Not the routine sort of things I had at the other place. This is a big company. I haven't anybody to celebrate with me if you won't."

"Tonight?"

"What's wrong with tonight?"

"Nothing. We'll make it tonight. At eight." And she thought "I mustn't hurt him. If I find he's caring for me, I won't see him. I'll never hurt anyone as Max has hurt me."

He was there before eight and in the living room talking with her parents when she came down. And he was the Stephen who wanted terribly to be liked who took her dancing at Clinton's best hotel.

"Nothing is good enough for tonight," he said, looking at her across a small table. "It must be champagne."

"I hope you always have the best."

"You said I would, didn't you?" He frowned. "You always wear that bracelet, I've noticed. I've never seen you without it."

"It was a gift."

"I thought so." He studied her an instant. "You're a funny girl."

"You mean you don't understand me?"

"I mean you always make me talk about myself so that you won't have to talk about yourself. I've told you more about myself than I've ever told anyone. You make me want to talk. It's not very interesting to you."

"It's your night to celebrate, not to analyze me."

"Okay. Shall we dance?"

So it was not champagne for reunion with Max, but champagne with a young man named Stephen Larrabee who had got a job that day.

Youth Risked Life To Get In Naval Air Corps

NEW ORLEANS — (INS)— Marechal O'Quinn, 18-year-old New Orleans youth, risked his life once to get in the U. S. naval air corps, and he's ready to risk it again now that he's in service.

O'Quinn is a former Louisiana State university student who tried to enlist in the air corps last May, but was turned down because of a physical defect that needed a delicate operation to correct.

Although the operation involved a gamble with his life, young O'Quinn accepted the risk.

The operation a success, he is now in the naval air corps, stationed at Norfolk, Va., and ready to risk his life again, if necessary, for his country.

North Carolina's four cigarette plants produce more cigarettes than the combined remaining twenty-three establishments, located in nine other states.

THEATERS

Screwball Classic.

Olsen and Johnson's screwball classic, "Hellzapoppin'," playing at the Ohio, has all the elements of a variety show plus a water ballet of no mean proportions. Olive Hatch, former Olympic and A. A. U. champion, created the spectacular and beautiful formations presented in the show and used a bevy of Hollywood beauties to gain her effects. The hurricane pace of the Olsen-Johnson production is set not only by the two screen zanies but by Mischa Auer, Hugh Herbert, Martha Raye and a colored dancing aggregation known as "The Congeroos."

Army Drama.

Thundering drama of the U. S. tank corps, "The Bugle Calls," Wallace Beery's starring vehicle showing at the Madison, was filmed at Fort Knox, Ky., with the full cooperation of the U. S. army. Beery plays the role of a cavally sergeant who grudgingly sees the cavalry surplanted by mechanized forces and then loses his beloved horse when a tank runs wild. Marjorie Main again plays opposite the star and Lewis Stone, George Bancroft and Donna Reed are in the cast. "Sing Your Worries Away," with Bert Lahr is the second attraction.

Dramatic Story.

"No Greater Sin," a dramatic story, opens today at the Ritz. Co-featured is "Law of the Jungle," with Arlene Judge and John King.

Plays Dual Role.

Don Ameche plays a dual role in "That Night In Rio," Technicolor musical featuring Alice Faye and Carmen Miranda at the Park. As an American entertainer in Rio, Ameche includes impressions of a gay Brazilian boulevardier in his cafe program and wins the interest of the Brazilian's blonde wife enacted by Miss Faye. This incurs the enmity of the entertainer's partner, a fiery Latin portrayed by Carmen Miranda. Music is interwoven through the story and the costumes and production numbers are colorful. John Boles' picture "Road to Happiness," is co-featured.

2—Card of Thanks

WITH REGARD TO A CARD OF THANKS

Very often a Card of Thanks in The News-Journal meets a need which can hardly be solved in any other way. Not only is it a gracious expression of gratitude to those who have sent floral tributes, but also courteously acknowledges the service and kindness of the many to whom a personal note of thanks cannot well be mailed, or whose names or addresses are not known.

A "Card of Thanks" can now be arranged by telephone: Dial 4251-6, ask for Miss Lane or Miss Stone, either will be glad to render whatever service and advice you need.

AIRCRAFT AND COPPERS EDGE UP ON MARKET

Many Leaders Lose Recovery Urge Evidenced During Monday Session.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Aircrafts and coppers managed to edge forward in today's stock market but many leaders lost the recovery urge exhibited in the preceding session.

Bid up in the early proceedings were Boeing, Sperry, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Santa Fe, Standard Oil (NJ), and Woodworth.

Inclined to falter were U. S. Steel, General Motors, Union Carbide, General Electric, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, American Telephone, Goodrich, Goodyear and Ligget & Myers "B."

The president's warning against inflation revived this topic in Wall Street and served to keep offerings in most cases at a minimum. The war news generally continued unsatisfactory market wise, brokers said, although some buying was attributed to the belief international might soon take a turn for the better.

Followers of the anthracite Coal company stocks derived some cheer from trade forecasts or better conditions in the industry in consequence of the fuel oil shortage.

Many home owners, it was contended, may be under the necessity of converting existing heating facilities to c al if the acute oil supply situation remains unrelieved next winter.

On the theory of a reduction in fuel oil consumption it was estimated that anthracite ouput in 1942 might be lifted as much as 50 per cent over the 54,000,000 tons produced last year.

BRITISH REPORT COST GOES UP

Exchequer Says Expenses Rise $58,000,000 Daily.

LONDON — (INS) — During the past six weeks the cost of the British government has risen to 14,500,000 pound sterling ($58,000,000) daily, Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir Kingsley Wood told the house of commons.

Two years ago, it cost only five million pounds ($20,000,000) each day to meet the costs of government. At present the fighting services alone are taking 9,750,000 pounds ($39,000,000), this authority declared.

Sir Kingsley announced the figure in introducing a supplementary vote of credit totaling $1,000,000,000.

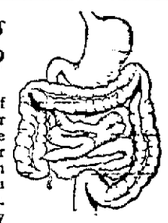
What's This?



It's 35 feet of intestines,—5 or 6 times the length of your body, thru which everything you eat must pass. Nature usually needs no help, but the wrong food, or too much of it, can cause temporary blockage (constipation) with aggravating gas, headaches, listlessness or bad breath. ADLERIKA, with its 5 carminative and 3 laxative ingredients, relieves gas quickly and gets bowel action surprisingly fast. Ask your druggist for ADLERIKA.

PROBE RUMORS OF SHIP MOVE

Allied Intelligence Agents Check Reports Nazis Get 40 Vessels From France.

(By United Press)

LONDON — Allied intelligence agents are investigating reports that the Vichy government has handed over to Germany about 40 French warships which were incomplete when France collapsed, and both the British and American governments are watching developments closely, it was understood today.

Reliable quarters said that so far no confirmation had been received of the reports.

Observers agreed, however, that persistent reports of French fleet movements in the Mediterranean, which preceded the charge that warships had been delivered to Germany, offered a most ominous threat to the Allied position in the Mediterranean.

It was believed in some quarters here that if the Allies received confirmation of charges that Vichy intended to give naval co-operation to Germany, Allied forces might strike first in the Mediterranean, instead of waiting for the Axis to move.

Moscow radio broadcast the charge that Vichy had given to the Germans 40 warships which had not been completed when the French-German armistice was signed in 1940. The Moscow radio quoted a Cairo dispatch of the official news agency Tass.

It said ships were of various classes and included the 35,000-ton battleship Clemenceau, one cruiser and many submarines.

The Clemenceau was laid down at Brest Jan. 17, 1939, and was not completed when France collapsed and signed an armistice with Germany. It had been understood that the Clemenceau's hull was wrecked by high explosives charges before Brest was evacuated.

EXAMS SET

54 County School Seniors To Compete In Tests.

Fifty-four seniors in the Richland county schools, representative of the upper scholarship bracket, are preparing to compete in the state scholarship tests, Saturday, March 28, in the hopes of winning a scholarship to an accredited college or university.

This figure is higher than last year, according to County Superintendent Boyd Robinson, who said that approximately 35 students took the tests last year.

The tests in mathematics, English, history, science and reading will be given at Madison high school under the supervision of a committee headed by the county superintendent. Others on the committee include Richard Irwin of Lexington, W. H. Miley of Bellville, and Clare Kuney of Springfield township, all teachers.

KING GETS FULL POWER IN NAVY

Ohio-Born Admiral Takes on Planning as Well as Combat Duties.

needed to produce closer co-ordination of army, navy and air corps.

Senator Austin (R., Vt.) felt that greater co-ordination was needed, and Senator Hill (D., La.), while crediting the army with much progress, said he hoped for the ultimate creation of an "overall staff" to unify the armed services into "one great machine."

The navy changes were considered a necessary preliminary to any such strategy board, for it ended the division of authority that existed between King and Stark and put King in absolute charge under President Roosevelt and Secretary Knox.

Stark's new post, it was said, will be comparable to that held by Admiral William S. Sims, World war commander of U. S. naval forces overseas. For the present, however, Vice Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll will continue as commander of the Atlantic fleet, King's old command.

In London Stark will succeed Vice Admiral Robert L. Ghormley, who has been on duty in England as a special naval observer since August, 1940.

A special staff was set up in the navy department to administer the duties which King took over from Stark, and this staff, like General Marshall's streamlined counterpart, will share responsibility in mapping the offensive operations which both army and navy chiefs have forecast.

A stern disciplinarian, who is not given to much talk, King has a service reputation for getting things done. During the time he commanded the Atlantic fleet in the pre-war patrol against Axis sea raiders, it was said that he always kept his ships "one speech ahead of the president."

It was understood that his new special staff for operations, headed by Rear Admiral F. J. Horne, may pave the way for a further reorganization that will give greater power and prominence to the navy's air arm in the high councils. King is one of the few high ranking officers who has qualified as a naval aviator, and all his commands from 1929 until 1940 were connected with the development of navy air strength and air bases.
